Slang and Colloquial English

A. A per se. The best; first-class; A1 (q.v.): see Tip-top. The usage became popular and was extended to other vocables. As subs., a paragon (1470). A1. (1) Prime; first-class, of the best. The character A denotes New Ships, of Ships Renewed or Restored. The Stores of Vessels are denoted by the figures 1 and 2; 1 signifying that the Vessel is well and sufficiently found (Key, Lloyd's Register). Also First-class, letter A; A1 copper-bottomed; and A1 and no mistake: Fr. marqué à l'A (money coined in Paris was formerly stamped with an A). Cf. A per se (1369). (2) Sometimes (erroneously) No. 1. A title for the commander of 900 men in the army of the Irish Republican Brotherhood: obsolete Fenian. Not knowing great A (or a B) from a bull's-foot (or a battledore), ignorant, illiterate: see B. What with A, and what with B: see What. To get one's A (Harrow), to pass a certain standard in the gymnasium: the next step is to the Gymnasium Eight. To get A (Felsted School), to be (practically) free of all restriction as to bounds: nominally the other bounds were, B, the ordinary limit, the roads about a mile from the school; C, punishment bounds, confinement to the cricket field and playground; and D, confinement to the old school-house playground, one of the commonest forms of punishment till 1876, when the present school-house was opened: C and D were also known respectively as Mongrel and Quod.

Aaron (1) A cadger (q.v.): a beggar mountain-guide. [Gesenius: prob. Heb. Aaron is a derivative of Hāron, a mountaineer.] (2) The leader of a gang of thieves; always with 'the' as a prefix. (3) A leader of the church (1607).

A. B. An A [ble]-b[odied] seaman.

Abba. A term of contempt: generic. As subs., a non-unionist: as adj., vile, silly.

Aback. To take aback, to surprise, check: suddenly and forcibly. [Orig. nautical: in which sense (O. E. D.) dating from 1754.]

Abacter (or Abactor). Stealers of Cattle or Beasts, by Herds, or great numbers; and were distinguished from Fures (Blount).

Abaddon. A thief turned informer; a snitcher (q.v.). [Obviously a Jew fence's punning reference to Abaddon, the angel of the bottomless pit; Rev. ix. 11.]

Abandannad (or Abandannaad). (1) A handkerchief (or bandanna) thief. Hence (2) a petty thief. [Brewer: A contraction (sic) of a bandanna lad.]

Abandoned Habit. In pl., spec. the riding demi-monde in Rotten Row.

Abber (Harrow). (1) An abstract; (2) an absit (q.v.).

Abness (or Lady Abness). A bawd; a stewardess of the stews (q.v.): cf. Abbot; Nun; Sacristan; etc. (1770.)

Abbey. To bring an abbey to a grange, to squander: also able to buy an abbey (Ray: we speak it of an unthrift). Among kindred expressions are: To bring a noble to ninepence; to make of a lance a thorn; to make of a pair of breeches a purse; to thwite a mill-post to a pudding-prick; His wind-mill is dwindled into a nut-cracker; from abness to lay-sister.

Abbey-laird. An insolvent debtor: spec. one sheltered in the sanctuary of Holyrood Abbey. (1709.)

Abbey-lubber (or loon). An idler, vagabond: orig. (prior to the Reformation) a lazy monk or hanger-on to a religious house. Hence abbey-lubber-like, lazy, thriftless, ne'er-do-well: see Lubber. (1509.)

Abbot. A bawd's man: ponce (q.v.): see Abbess. Whence Abbot on the cross (or croziered abbot), the bully (q.v.) of a brothel. Abbot (or Lord) of Mistrule, the leader of the Christmas revels. Also (Scots) Abbot of unreason, and Fr. Abbé de Liesse (Abbot of Joy). (1591.)

Abbot's Priory. The King's Bench Prison: Abbot's Park, the rules thereof (Grose, 1823, Bee). [Sir Charles Abbott, afterwards Lord Tenterden, was Lord C.-J. of the King's Bench, 1818.]

A B C (The). 1. The A B C (Alphabetical) Railway Guide. 2. (London). An establishment of the Aërated Bread Company: orig. bakers, now refreshment caterers. Hence A B C girl, a waitress therein. 3. (Christ's). Ale, Bread, and Cheese on going home night. 4. Generic for beginnings: thus, like (or as easy as) A B C, facile, as simple as learning the alphabet; down to the A B C, down to first principles, or the simplest rudiments. (1595.)

Abear. To endure, suffer. [O.E.D.: A word of honourable antiquity; widely diffused in the dialects; in London reckoned as a vulgarism. (885 with a gap to c. 1836)].

Aberdeen Cutlet. A dried had-dock: cf. Billingsgate pheasant.

Abigail. A waiting-woman, lady's maid. [Abigail, a waiting gentlewoman in The Scornful Lady (1616) by Beaumont and Fletcher: also see 1 Sam. xxv. 24-31.] Hence Abigailship (Grose). Cf. Andrew, Acres, etc. (1663.)

Abingdon-law. Summary punishment: cf. Stafford-law; Lydford-law; Scarborough-warning, etc. [In 1645, lord Essex and Waller held Abingdon, in Berks, against Charles I. The town was unsuccessfully attacked by Sir Stephen Hawkins in 1644, and by prince Rupert in 1645. On these occasions the defenders put every Irish prisoner to death without trial.]

Ablewhackets (or Abelwhackets). A popular sea game with cards, wherein the loser is beaten over the palms of the hands with a handkerchief tightly twisted like a rope. Very popular with horny-fisted sailors (Smyth).

Aboard. A gamester's term for getting even in score.

About. See East, Right, Size.

Above. See Bend, Par, Hooks, Huckleberry, Persimmon.

Abacadabra. (1) A cabalistic word, formerly used as a charm. Hence (2), any word-charm, verbal jingle, gibberish, nonsense, or extravagancy.

Abraham. 1. A cheap clothier's, slop (q.v.), or hand-me-down shop (q.v.). Hence Abraham work, ill-paid work, sweated labour (see Abraham-man). 2. Auburn: formerly written abern and abron: also Abram and Abraham-coloured. (1592.) 3. See Abraham-man.

Abraham Grains. A publican brewing his own beer.

Abraham-man (Abram, Abram-man or Abram-cove). A sturdy beggar (1567): also Bedlam beggar (q.v.) and Tom of Bedlam. These sturdy beggars roamed the country, begging and stealing, down to the period of the Civil Wars.] Hence To sham (or do) Abram (or to Abraham sham), to feign madness, sham sick (nautical). Also Abram, naked, mad, shamming sick; Abraham-work, shams of all kinds, false pretences: whence to go on the Abraham suit, to resort to trick or artifice. The mad Tom of King Lear is an Abram-man: see Edgar's description, iii. 4.]

Abraham Newland. A bank note. [Abraham Newland was chief cashier to the Bank of England, from 1778 to 1807.] Hence To sham Abraham, to forge bank paper.

Abraham's Balm. Hanging: see Ladder.

Abraham's - bosom. Dead and gone to heaven: cf. Luke xvi. 22.

Abraham's eye. A magic charm, the application of which was supposed to deprive a thief, who refused to confess his crime, of eyesight.

Abraham's Willing. A shilling: see Rhino.

Abroad. 1. Wide of the mark, out of one's reckoning, perplexed. To come abroad (Winchester), to return to school work after sickness; to be on the sick list is to be continent (q.v.). Also to be furked abroad, to be sent back to school after going continent: an implication of shamming.

Abroaded. A noble defaulter on the continent to avoid creditors was said to be abroaded; also police slang for convicts sent to a colonial or penal settlement, but likewise applied by thieves to imprisonment merely.

Abs (Winchester). (1) Absent: placed against the name of a boy when absent from school. Also (2) to take away. Formerly, circa 1840, to abs a tolly (candle), meant to put it out; now, to take it away, whether lighted or unlighted: the modern notion (q.v.) for putting it out being to dump it. (3) To get (or put) away; generally in the imperative: e.g. abs! Hence, to abs quickly, to stir one's stumps (q.v.), or to put things away with speed. To have one's wind absed, to get a breather (q.v.).

Abscotchalater. One in hiding from the police: cf. Absquatulate.

Absence (Eton). Names-calling. (1856.)

Absent. Absent without leave, of one who has broken prison, or absconded.

Absentee. A convict.

Absent-minded Beggar. Tommy Atkins (q.v.): popularised by Kipling's verses in aid of the wives and children of soldiers serving in South Africa during the Boer War.

Absit. Every undergraduate wishing to leave Cambridge for a whole day, not including a night, must obtain an absit from his tutor. Permission to go away for a longer period . . . is called an exeat.

Abskize (or Abschize). To decamp: see Bunk. [Said to be of Western origin, circa 1833.]

Absquatulate (or Absquotilate). To decamp, skedaddle (q.v.): see Bunk. (1833.)

Academy. (1) A gang of thieves; (2) a rendezvous for thieves, harlots, or gamblers; and (3) a prison. Hence Academician, (1) a thief, and (2) a harlot. Also buzzing academy, a training school for pickpockets; canting-academy, (1) a common lodging-house, dossing-ken (q.v.), or house of call for beggars, and (2) a likely house for working (q.v.); floating academy, the hulks; character academy, a resort of servants without characters, which are there concocted; and gammoning-academy, a reformatory (B. E., Grose, Bee, Matsell.)

Accident. (1) Seduction; and (2) a bastard: see By-blow.

Accommodate. 1. To equip, supply, provide. [Jonson, Discoveries: one of the perfumed terms of the time, Halliwel: the indefinite use is well ridiculed by Bardolph's vain attempt to define it (2 H. IV., iii. 2. 77): cf. to accommodate with a loan, or with cash for a cheque.] (1597.) 2. To part a bet, or to let a person go halves (that is to accommodate him) in a bet that is likely to come off successful. It is also, in an ironical manner, to believe a person when you are well assured he is uttering a lie, by observing you believe what he is saying, merely to accommodate him (Grose).

Accompany. To cohabit. (1500.)

Account. To cast up accounts (one's gorge, or reckoning). 1. To vomit, cat (or shoot the cat) (q.v.): orig. to cast, thence by punning extension (Ray, Grose): also to audit one's accounts at the Court of Neptune (1484). 2. To turn King's evidence. To go on the account, to join a filibustering or buccaneering expedition, turn pirate. [Ogilvie: probably from the parties sharing, as in a commercial venture.] (1812.) To account for, to kill, literally to be answerable for bringing down one's share of the shooting; make away with. (1846.) To give a good account of, to be successful, do one's duty by: e.g. The stable gave a good account of their trainer. (1684.)

Accoutrement. In pl., fine rigging (now) for Men or Women, (formerly) only Trappings for Horses. Well accoutred, genteilly dress'd (B. E.). [A recognised usage from the middle of the 16th century.]

Accumulative. A sort of journalistic sparring match, codicil (q.v.).

Accumulator. A backer, successful with one horse, carrying forward the stakes to another event.

Ace. The smallest standard of value: also ambs-ace: see Rap, Straw, etc. Hence To bate an ace, to make a slight reduction: also bate me an ace, quoth Bolton, a derisive retort; within an ace (or amb's-ace), nearly, within a shade: see Ames Ace. (1528.)

Ace of Spades. 1. A widow. 2. A black-haired woman.

Ack (Christ's). No! refusal of a request, e.g. Lend me your book. Ack!

Ackman (Ackpirate or Ackruff). A fresh-water thief or pirate. [Cf. dialectic Acker, flood-tide, a bore, and Ark.]

Adam's-ale (-wine, or Adam). Water. (1643.) English synonyms, aqua pura; aqua pompaginis; fish broth; pure element.

Adam's-apple. The thyroid cartilage: also Adam's-morsel. (1586.)

Adam's-arms. A spade; cf. old saw: When Adam delved and Eve span, Who was then the gentleman? Hence Adam's profession, spade work (i.e. gardening). (1602.)

Adam Tiler (or Adam). An accomplice. (1696.)

Add. To add to the list, to geld, add to the list of geldings in training.

Addition. Colouring matter, or cosmetics used for the face. (1704.)

Addition, Division, and Silence! A Philadelphia catch phrase: properly multiplication, division, and silence! a reply given by William (Boss) Tweed when asked the proper qualification for a ring or trust. (1872.)

Addle. To addle the shoon, to roll on the back from side to side: of horses. [In the South a horse is then said to earn a gallon of oats.]

Addle-egg. Addle egg and Idle head, anything worthless, an abortion. (1589.)

Addle-brain (-cove, -head, or -pate). A stupid bungler, dullard, one full of Whimsies and Projects, and as empty of Wit (B. E. and Grose). Hence addle-brained, etc. (1580.)

Addle-plot. A marplot, spoil-sport, Martin-mar-all (B. E. and Grose).

Adjective Jerker. A writer for the press; ink-slinger (q.v.).

Adjutant's Gig. The barrack roller: usually drawn by men under punishment.

Admiral. Admiral of the Blue, a tapster: from the colour of his apron (Grose). (1731.) Admiral of the Narrow Seas, a man vomiting into the lap of his neighbour or vis-à-vis (Grose). Admiral of the Red, a sot: see Lushington. Admiral of the Red, White, and Blue, a beadle, hall-porter, or similar functionary when sporting the livery of office. Admiral of the White, a white-faced person, coward, woman in a faint. Yellow Admiral, a rear-admiral retired without service afloat after promotion. [Admirals of the red, the white, or the blue, were grades in naval rank prior to 1864, according to the colour of the ensign displayed: all admirals now fly the white ensign, and they rank as Admiral of the Fleet, Admiral, Vice-Admiral, and Rear-Admiral.] To tap the Admiral, (1) to suck the monkey: see quots.; Germ. Den Affen saugen. Also (2) to drink on the sly. (1834.)

Admiral's Regiment (The). The Royal Marines; also nicknamed The Little Grenadiers, The Jollies, and The Globe Rangers.

Adonis. 1. A dandy, exquisite. Hence, to adonize, to dandify, dress to kill: of men only. (1611.) 2. A wig. (1760.)

Adrift. Loose—I'll turn ye adrift, a Tar phrase; I'll prevent ye doing me any harm (B. E.); also (Grose) adrift, discharged. Hence, astray, puzzled, distracted. (1690.)

Adsum (Charterhouse). A response in answer to a summons or names-calling. (1821.)

Adullamites. 1. A nickname for seceding Liberals who in 1866 voted Tory because dissatisfied with a Liberal measure for the extension of the Franchise. [See 1 Sam. xxii. 1.] The political party in question were also known collectively as The Cave. Hence (2) Adullamy, ratting (q.v.).

Advantage. 1. A thirteenth: added to a dozen of anything; (2) something in addition: also vantage. See Baker's dozen and Lagniappe. (1641.) To play upon advantage, to cheat. (1592.)

Ægrotat (Æger). 1. An excuse for absence on account of sickness; (2) a medical or other certificate of indisposition (Grose). [Ægritude, sickness; Ægrotat, an invalid. (1532).] Hence reading-ægrotant, leave taken to read for a degree; æger-room (Felsted), the sick room. Lat. He is sick.]—Gradius ad Cantab., 1803.

Affidavit-man. A false witness, said to attend Westminster Hall, and other courts of justice, ready to swear anything for hire (Grose).

Afflicke. A thief. (1610.)

Afflicted. Drunk: see Screwed (Ray).

Afflictions. Mourning goods: e.g. Afflictions are quiet, there is little demand for mourning. Mitigated afflictions, half mourning.

Affygraphy. To an affygraphy, to a nicety, a T. In an affygraphy, in a moment, directly.

Afloat. Drunk: see Screwed: also with back teeth well afloat.

Afraid. Among colloquial and proverbial sayings are: He that's afraid of grass must not piss in a meadow (Ital. Chi ha paura d'ogni urtica non pisci in herba, He that's afraid of every nettle must not piss in the grass); He that's afraid of leaves must not come in a wood (French, Qui a peur des feuilles ne doit pas aller au bois: Ital., Non entri tra rocca e fuso chi non vuol esser filato); He that's afraid of the wagging of feathers must keep from among wild fowl; He that's afraid of wounds must not come near a battle; He's never likely to have a good thing cheap that's afraid to ask the price; Afraid of far enough (fearful of what is not likely to happen) Afraid of him that died last year (fearful of a shadow); Afraid of the hatchet lest the helve strike him; Afraid of his shadow; More afraid than hurt.

Apostles (Twelve Apostles). Formerly when the Poll, or ordinary B.A. degree list, was arranged in order of merit, the last twelve were nicknamed The Twelve Apostles; also The Chosen Twelve, and the last, St. Poll or St. Paul—a punning allusion to 1 Cor. xv. 9, For I am the least of the Apostles, that am not meet to be called an Apostle. The list is now arranged alphabetically and in classes. At Columbia College, D.C., the last twelve on the B.A. list actually receive the personal names of the Apostles. (1785.) To manœuvre the apostles, to borrow of one to pay another, to rob Peter to pay Paul (Grose).

Apostle's Grove. St. John's Wood; also the Grove of the Evangelist.

Apothecary. Formerly a term of contempt: prior to 1617 the business of grocer and chemist was combined, and it was not till 1815 that the status of an apothecary, as a medical practitioner, was legally held by licence and examination of the Apothecaries Company. Hence To talk like an apothecary, to talk nonsense, use (Grose) hard or gallipot words: from the assumed gravity and affectation of knowledge generally put on by the gentlemen of this profession, who are commonly as superficial in their learning as they are pedantic in their language. Also Apothecaries' Latin, gibberish, dog-(kitchen-, or raw-) Latin (q.v.); Apothecaries' bill, a long undetailed account: cf. Bawdy-house reckoning. Likewise proverbial sayings: A broken apothecary, a new doctor; Apothecaries would not give pills in sugar unless they were bitter.

Babber-lipped. See Blabber-lips.

B a b b l e. Confused unintelligible talk such as was used at the building of the tower of Babel (B. E. and Grose). Babbler, a great talker (B. E.). [O. E. D.: Common to several languages: in none can its history be carried far back; as yet it is known as early in English as anywhere else. . . . No direct connection with Babel can be traced; though association with that may have affected the senses.]

Babbler. 1. A hound giving too much tongue. (1732.) 2. See Babble.

Babe. 1. The last elected member of the House of Commons: cf. father of the House, the oldest representative. 2. The youngest member of a class at the United States Military College, West Point. 3. An auctionshark (q.v.); a knock-out (q.v.) man: for a consideration these agree not to oppose the bidding of larger dealers, who thus keep down the price of lots. 4. (American). A Baltimore rowdy: also blood tub (q.v.), plug-ugly (q.v.): see Baby.

Babe in the Wood. 1. A culprit in the stocks or pillory (Grose). 2. In pl., dice.

Baboo (or Babu). In Bengal, and elsewhere, among Anglo-Indians, it is often used with a slight savour of disparagement as characterising a superficially cultivated, but too often effeminate Bengali; and from the extensive employment of the class to which the term was applied as a title in the capacity of clerks, in English offices the word has come often to signify a native clerk who writes English (Yule). Hence baboo-English, superfine; grandiloquent English such as is written by a baboo; also baboodom and babooism. (1866.)

Baboon. A term of abuse: see Ape. Whence baboonery; baboonish; and baboonize, to monkey (q.v.). (1380.)

Baby (or Babe). 1. A childish person: e.g. a great baby, a mere baby, etc. Hence, to smell of the baby, to be infantine or childish (in character or ability): cf. Baby-act. Also, to act (or treat) childishly; babyhood (babydom or babyism), childishness; baby-bunting, an endearment. (1596.) 2. In pl., pictures in books. [O. E. D.: perh. orig. the ornamental tail-pieces and borders with Cupids and grotesque figures interworked.] (1605.) 3. The minute reflection of one gazing into another's eye. Hence to look babies (or a boy) in the eyes, to look amorously; to cast sheep's-eyes (q.v.). (1586.) 4. A doll, puppet, a child's plaything: also baby-clouts, a rag-doll: see Bartholomew-baby. (1530.) As adj., small; tiny; e.g. a baby-glass, baby-engine, etc. (1859.) To kiss the baby, to take a drink; to smile (q.v.).

Bacchus. 1. Wine, intoxicating liquor. Whence son of Bacchus, a tippler: see Lushington; and Bacchi plenus, drunk: see Screwed. [Innumerable derivatives and combinations have been and are still in more or less regular and literary use.] (1496.) 2. (Eton.) Verses written (c. 1561) on Shrove Tuesday in honour or dispraise of Bacchus—because poets were considered the clients of Bacchus. . . . This custom was continued almost into modern days, and though the subject was changed, the copy of verses was still called a Bacchus.

Bach (or Batch). To live as a bachelor.

Bachelor. Then the town bull is a bachelor, the retort incredulous on a woman's chastity (Ray).

Bachelor's Baby. A bastard: see Bye-blow and Bachelor's-wife. (1672.)

Bachelor's Buttons. To wear bachelor's buttons, to be a bachelor. [Grey. Country fellows carried the flowers of this plant in their pockets, to know whether they should succeed with their sweethearts, and they judged of their good or bad success by their growing or not growing there.]

Bachelor's-fare. Bread and cheese and kisses. (1738.)

Bachelor's-wife. (1) An ideal wife; and (2) a harlot: whence bachelor's baby, a bastard. (1562.)

Back. 1. To espouse, advocate, or support, a matter, by money, influence, authority, etc.: commonly, to back up. Hence (2), in racing, to wager, or bet in support of one's opinion, judgment, or fancy; to back the field, to bet against all horses save one, usually the favourite; backed, betted on; backer, (1) a supporter, back-friend (q.v.), and (2) a layer of odds: cf. bookie; backing, support. (1548.) 3. Back-paternoster. See Backwards.

Back-scratcher. 1. A wooden toy on the principle of a watchman's rattle, which, drawn down the back, sounds like the ripping up of cloth; much in favour at fairs and in crowds; its use (in London) is now (1904) prohibited by police order. 2. A flatterer: hence back-scratching, flattery: cf. Ka me, Ka thee.

Back-seam. To be down on one's back-seam, to be down on one's luck.

Back Seat. To take a back seat, to retire into obscurity, confess failure, be left behind. [The colloquialism received an immense send off by Andrew Johnson in 1868: In the work of reconstruction traitors should take back seats.]

Back-set (modern, Set-back). A rebuff, untoward circumstance, relapse. Hence, to set back, to check.

Back-slang. 1. A variety of slang, orig. costers, in which a word is slightly veiled by being written or pronounced as nearly as possible backwards: thus yob, boy; cool, look; yennep, penny; etc. 2. See Slum. 3. A back-room; also the back-entrance to any house or premises; thus, we'll give it 'em on the back slum, means we'll get in at the backdoor. As verb, (1) To enter or come out of a house by the backdoor; or to go a circuitous or private way through the streets, in order to avoid any particular place in the direct road, is termed back-slanging it (Grose). (2) (Australian) to ask for hospitality on the road: a common and recognised up-country practice.

Bad Job. An ill bout, bargain, or business (B. E.).

Bad Man. A professional fighter or man-killer, but who is sometimes perfectly honest. These men do most of the killing in frontier communities; yet the men who are killed generally deserve their fate. They are used to brawling, are sure shots, and able to draw their weapon with marvellous quickness. They think nothing of murder, are the terror of their associates, yet are very chary of taking the life of a man of good standing, and will often weaken, and back down, at once if confronted fearlessly. Stockmen have united to put down these dangerous characters, and many localities once infested by bad men are now perfectly law-abiding (Roosevelt).

Bad Match Twist. Red (or caroty) hair and black whiskers.

Badminton. 1. A kind of claret-cup: claret, sugar, spice, soda-water, and ice. [Invented at the Duke of Beaufort's seat of the same name.] (1845.) 2. Blood: cf. Claret, Rosy, etc.

Baker. 1. Bakers, against whom severe penalties for impurity of bread or shortness of weight were enacted from very early times, have been the subject of much colloquial sarcasm. 'I feare we parte not yeet, Quoth the baker to the pylorie.' (1562.) They say the owl was a baker's daughter. (1602.) Three dear years will raise a baker's daughter to a portion; 'Tis not the smallness of the bread, but the knavery of the baker; Take all, and pay the baker; Pull devil, pull baker. 2. A loafer. [The word is generally attributed to Baron de MandatGrancey, who, in Cowboys and Colonels, innocently translated the word loafer as baker.] To spell baker, to attempt a difficult task. [In old spelling books Baker was often the first word of two syllables to which a child came when learning to spell.]

Baker-kneed (or Baker-legged). Knock-kneed, bow-legged, effeminate (Grose). (1607.)

Baker's Dozen (or Bargain). 1. Thirteen counted as twelve: sometimes fourteen (Grose and Bee). Hence 2. good measure: e.g. To give a man a baker's dozen, to trounce him well. Also Brown-dozen (q.v.), Devil's-dozen (cf. Baker 1, and Fr., boulangier, devil), and Round-dozen (see Round). [Bakers were (and are) liable to heavy penalties for deficiency in the weights of loaves: these were fixed for every price from eighteenpence down to twopence, but penny loaves or rolls were not specified in the statute. They, therefore, to be on the safe side, gave, for a dozen of bread, an additional loaf, known as inbread. A similar custom was formerly observed with regard to coal, and publishers nowadays reckon thirteen copies of a book as twelve. (1596.)

Baker's Light Bobs. The 10th Hussars.

Bakes. 1. A schoolboy. 2. An original stake: chiefly schoolboys': e.g. When I get my bakes back I shall stop playing. [Bartlett: in reference possibly to a baker not always getting his bake safely out of the oven.]

Bakester, Baking-leave, Baking-place, etc. See Bake.

Balaam. Miscellaneous paragraphs for filling up a column of type, padding (q.v.); applied either to MS. copy or stereo. Hence Balaam-box (or -basket), (1) a receptacle for such matter, and (2) a waste-paper basket. [Webster: a cant term; popularised by Blackwood's Mag. See Numbers xxii. 30.] (1822.)

Balacava-day. A soldier's pay day. [Balacava in 1854-6 was a base of supply for English troops: as pay was drawn, the men went down to make their purchases.]

Balance. The remainder, the rest: cf. lave (Scots) and shank (as in the shank of the evening). (1846.)

Balbus. A Latin prose composition. [From the frequency with which Balbus is mentioned in Arnold's Latin Prose Composition.]

Baldcoot. 1. A term of contempt: cf. Baldhead. [The frontal plate of the coot is destitute of feathers.] Hence bald as a coot, as bald as may be.

[Tyndale, Works (1530), ii. 224, s.v.]

2. A young man who parts with his blunt freely at gambling, and is rooked; older persons also stay and get plucked sometimes, until they have not a feather to fly with. Such men, after the plucking, become bald-coots (Bee).

Balderdash. (1) Froth or frothy liquid; (2) a jumble of liquors (B. E. and Grose): e.g. brandy (or milk) and beer, milk and rum, etc.: also as verb, to dash with another liquid, and hence to adulterate (Grose); (3) a jumble of words, nonsense, trash; and (4) lewd conversation (Grose), obscenity, scurrility. [O. E. D.: From the evidence at present the inference is that the current sense was transferred . . . with the notion of frothy talk. Century: Of obscure origin, apparently dial. or slang.] (1598.)

Bald-face. New whisky: warranted to kill at forty rods. Baldfaced, neat (q.v.).

Bald-faced Shirt. A white shirt: cf. Boiled shirt.

Barn-mouse. Bitten by a barn-mouse, tipsy, screwed (q.v.): see Barley (Grose), Barn-stormer. A strolling player: spec. a mouthing actor (see quot. 1886): also barnstorming.

Barnumese. The high-faluting (q.v.) language so lavishly used by the late P. T. Barnum in advertising the greatest show on earth, exaggeration of style: cf. Telegraphese: hence to barnumize (1) to exhibit with a lavish display of puffing advertisement; and (2) to talk of (or assert) oneself bombastically in the style of Barnum.

Baronet. A sirloin of beef: cf. Baron. (1749.)

Barrack. To jeer at opponents, interrupt noisily, make a disturbance; also with for, to support as a partisan, generally with clamour: an Australian football term dating from about 1880: the verb has been ruled unparliamentary by the Speaker in the Victorian Legislative Assembly, but it is in very common colloquial use: it is from the aboriginal word borak (q.v.), and the sense of jeering is earlier than that of supporting, but jeering at one side is akin to cheering for the other (Morris). Hence barracking and bar-racker.

Barrack-(or Garrison)-hack. 1. A young woman attending garrison balls year after year. 2. A soldiers' trull: see Hackney.

Barred-gown. An officer of the law; spec. a judge: broad stripes or bars of gold lace run across the front of the gown.

Barrel. 1. A confirmed tippler: also beer-barrel; whence barrel-house (American), a low groggery; barrel-fever, drunkenness (or disease caused by tipping); see Gallon-distemper; barrel-boarder, a bar loafer. 2. Money used in a political campaign (American politics); spec. that expended for corrupt purposes: cf. Booodle; barrel-campaign, an election in which bribery is a leading feature: a wealthy candidate for office (c. 1876) is said to have remarked, Let the boys know that there's a bar'l o' money ready for 'em, or words to that effect. Never (or the devil) a barrel the better herring, much like, not a pin to choose between them, six of one and half a dozen of the other. (1542).

Barrel-bellied. Well-rounded in stomach, corpulent. (1694.)

Barrell's Blues. The Fourth Foot, now The King's Own (Royal Lancashire Regiment): from its facings and Colonel's name from 1734 to 1739.

Barres. Money lost at play, but not paid: a corruption of barrace, an obsolete plural of bar.

Barrikin. Gibberish, jargon, jumble of words. (1851.)

Barring Out. A half serious but oftentimes jocular rebellion of schoolboys against their schoolmaster. [Halliwell.—An ancient custom at schools: the boys, a few days before the holidays, barricade the school room from the master, and stipulate for the discipline of the next half year. According to Dr. Johnson, Addison, in 1683, was the leader in an affair of this kind at Lichfield.]

Barrow-bunter. A barrow-woman, a female costermonger. (1771.)

Barrow-man. A man under sentence of transportation.

Barrow-tram. A raw-boned person: properly the shaft of a wheelbarrow.

Barter (Winchester College). A half volley: as verb, to hit hard. [From the Warden of that name famous for disposing of them.] *Hitting barter*s, practice catching, full pitches hit from the middle of Turf towards Ball-Court for catching practice towards the end of Long Meads.

Bartholomew Baby. 1. A gaudily dressed doll, such as appears to have been commonly sold at Bartholomew Fair. 2. A person gaudily dressed.

Bartholomew-pig. Roasted pigs were formerly among the chief attractions of Bartholomew Fair, West Smithfield, London: they were sold piping hot, in booths and on stalls, and ostentatiously displayed, to excite the appetite of passengers. Hence a Bartholomew-pig became a common subject of allusion: the Puritan railed against it.

Barts. St. Bartholomew Hospital.

Bash. To beat, thrash, crush out of shape. Bashing, a flogging, spec. with the cat; basher (1) a rough; and (2) a prize-fighter.

Bashaw. 1. A pasha. 2. A great (or imperious) man, grandee. (1593.)

Bashi-Bazouk. A ruffian: used loosely as a more or less mild term of opprobrium; also applied to anything bizarre in character or composition: the expression came into vogue during the period when the Bulgarian atrocities were electrifying the world by their barbarous cruelty.

Bash-rag. A ragamuffin.

Basil. A fetter: usually fastened on the ankle of one leg only. (1592.)

Basin. A schooner (q.v.).

Basket. An exclamation frequently made use of in cockpits where persons, unable to pay their losings, are adjudged to be put into a basket suspended over the pit, there to remain till the sport is concluded (Grose). To go to the basket, to go to prison: poor prisoners in public gaols were mainly dependent on the almsbasket for sustenance (1632); to pin the basket, to conclude a matter; to be left in the basket, to remain unchosen; left to the last; the pick of the basket, the best, choicest; to bring to the basket, to reduce to poverty; to leave in the basket, to leave in the lurch.

Basket-scrambler. One living on charity, in receipt of alms.

Bass. A familiar abbreviation for Bass' ale, brewed at Burton-on-Trent.

Bass. A kiss: see Buss (1450). Also as verb.

Basta. It is enough! No more! No matter!

Baste. To thrash, beat soundly: cf. Anoint (1533). Basting, a cudgelling, tanning (q.v.).

Baster. 1. A house thief (q.v.). 2. A stick, cudgel. 3. A heavy blow. (1726.)

Bastile. A workhouse. 2. A prison, steel (q.v.).

Bat. 1. A prostitute: cf. Fly-by-night: Fr. hirondelle de nuit. 2. A drunken frolic: see Batter. 3. Pace, speed, rate, manner, style: e.g. going off at a lively bat. Off one's own bat, by oneself, through one's own exertions, unaided (1845); to bat the eyes, (1) to blink, wink; (2) to look on, watch; of a bystander not playing; to carry out one's bat, to outlast all opponents, secure result aimed at.

Batch. To live single: of both sexes: a corruption of 'batchelor.'

Batchelor's Son. A bastard.

Bate. Bate me an ace, quoth Bolton, an expression of credulity (1570), Excuse me!

Bates' Farm (or Garden). Coldbath Fields prison: from a warder of that name and a certain appropriateness in the initials, C.B.F., the prison initials, and used as a stamp, Charley Bates' farm. To feed the chickens on Charley Bates' Farm, to be put to the treadmill.

Bat-fowler. A swindler, sharper, victimiser of the unwary. Bat-fowling, swindling, rookery (1602).

Bath. Go to Bath, a contemptuous injunction to be off, Go to Blazes, Hull, Halifax—anywhere: the injunction was intensified by, 'and get your head shaved,' a suggestion of craziness. To go to Bath, to go begging: Bath in the latter days of the 17th century was infested with the cadging fraternity.

Bathing Machine. A 10-ton brig.

Batie - bum (or Batie - bummil). A useless bungler, slowcoach, inactive helpless fellow (1550).

Bat-mugger (Winchester College). A wooden instrument used for rubbing oil into cricket bats.

Bats. A pair of bad or old boots. Elworthy, in West Somerset Words, gives this as a heavy laced boot with hobnails.

Bats Down. How many bats down? i.e. how many wickets have fallen?

Battels. The weekly bills of students at Oxford. Dr. Murray says much depends on the original sense at Oxford: if this was food, provisions, it is natural to connect it with battle, to feed, or receive nourishment. It appears that the word has apparently undergone progressive extensions of application, owing partly to changes in the internal economy of the colleges. Some Oxford men of a previous generation state that it was understood by them to apply to the buttery accounts alone, or even to the provisions ordered from the buttery, as distinct from the commons supplied from the kitchen: but this latter use is disavowed by others. Also as verb, and Battler, an Oxford student, formerly used in contradistinction to a gentleman commoner.

Batter. Wear and tear; e.g. the batter is more than can be stood for long. To go on the batter, to indulge in debauchery of any kind—drunkenness, prostitution, etc. Battered, drunk: see Screwed.

Batterfang. To beclaw, attack with fists and nails (1630).

Battle. See Battels. Phrases, to give the battle, to acknowledge defeat, grant the victory; to have the battle, to be the victor (1400); half the battle (of anything that contributes largely to success).

Battledore. Not to know a B from a battledore, to be utterly illiterate (1553); to say B (or Bo!) to a battledore, to open one's mouth, to speak: cf. Bo to a goose (1592).

Battledore-boy. An abecedarian. Battle of the Nile. A hat, tile: see Cady.

Battle-royal. A general squabble, free fight: spec. of two termagant women (1672).

Battle-wright. A soldier.

Battlings. A weekly allowance of money: at Winchester it is 1s., while at Repton it is only 6d: also see Battels, passim.

Battner. An ox: The cove has hushed the battner, i.e. has killed the ox (B. E.).

Batty. Wages; perquisites: from batta, an extra pay given to soldiers while serving in India. Col. Yule says in Indian banking, batty means difference in exchange, discount on coins not current (or of short weight).

Baabee. See Bawbee.

Bauble (Bable or Bawbell). A toy, trinket, trifle (B. E.). To deserve the bauble, to be foolish: the bauble being the Court jester's baton surmounted by a carved head with ass' ears; to give the bauble, to befool.

Baulk. 1. A false report (especially that a master is at hand), which is sported (q.v.), not spread. 2. A false shot, a mistake.

Baum. To fawn, flatter, curry favour (Hall).

Bawbee (or Baabee). A halfpenny (B. E.).

Bawcock. A burlesque term of endearment, my good fellow, my fine fellow.

Bawdy-baskets. The twenty-third rank of Canters, with Pins, Tape, Obscene Books, etc., to sell, but live more by stealing (B. E.).

Baw-waw. An exclamation of contempt (1599). As adj., contemptibly noisy.

Bayard of Ten Toes. 1. The feet, Shanks mare, Marrowbone stage

(1606). To ride bayard of ten toes, to go on foot; as bold as blind Bayard (of those who do not look before they leap); hence generic for blindness, ignorance, or recklessness. Bayard was a horse famous in old romances.

Bay State. The State of Massachusetts: orig. the Colony of Massachusetts Bay.

Bayswater Captain. A sponger (q.v.), adventurer: cf. Dryland sailor.

Bay Window. Fat, pregnant, lumpy (q.v.).

Beach-cadger. A beggar whose pitch is at watering-places and sea-ports.

Beach-comber. 1. A long wave rolling in from the ocean. 2. A settler on islands in the Pacific, living by means more or less reputable: comprising runaway seamen, and deserters from whalers. 3. A sea-shore loafer, one on the look-out for odd jobs. 4. A river boatman. 5. A wrecker, water-rat (q.v.).

Beach-tramper. A coastguardsman, shingle smasher.

Bead. To draw a bead, to attack an opponent by speech or otherwise: from backwoods parlance; to raise a bead, to bring to the point, ensure success: from brandy, rum, or other liquors, which will not raise a bead unless of the proper strength; to bid a bead, to offer prayer; beads-bidding, prayer; to say (tell, or count) one's beads, to say prayers; to pray without one's beads, to be out of one's reckoning.

Beadle. Red-tapism, formality, stupid officiousness (1860).

Beady. Full of bubbles, frothy (1868).

Beagle. subs. (old). A spy; informer; man-hunter, policeman; also a general term of contempt (1559).

Beak. 1. A constable (also harman-beck), policeman, guardian of the peace: as far as is known, this (as beck) is the oldest cant term for one of a class of men. In Harman's Caveat (1573), harman beck is explained as 'the counstable, harmans being the stockes.' 2. A magistrate: sometimes beak of the law. 3. The nose: see Conk (1598). 4. (Eton and Marlborough Schools). A master: 5. A thrust, poke (1592). Birds of a beak, birds of a feather (q.v.).

Beaker. A fowl: also Beak. Cackling-cheat (q.v.): Fr., estable, or estaphle Beaker-hunter. A poultry thief: also Beak-hunter.

Beak-gander. A judge of the High Court of Justice.

Beaksman. A policeman.

Be-all and End-all. The whole, everything, the blooming lot (q.v.) (1606).

Beam. An authorised standard of criticism, manners, morals, etc. To kick (or strike) the beam, to be overpowered, in a tight place (or corner).

Beam Ends. To be thrown on one's beamends, (1) to be in bad circumstances, at one's last shift, hard-up: a metaphor drawn from sea-faring life: a ship is said to be on her beam ends when on her side by stress of weather, or shifting of cargo, as to be submerged (1830), 2. Also, less figuratively, to be thrown to the ground, reduced to a sitting or lying posture.

Bean (or Bien). 1. A sovereign, 20s.: formerly a guinea: in America five-dollar gold pieces: see Half-bean and Haddock of beans: in old French cant, biens meant money or property: see Rhino. 2. pl., small coal (Newcastle).

Full of beans, in good form (or condition), full of health, spirits, or capacity, as a horse after a good feed of beans. To give beans, to chastise, give a good drubbing. Like beans, in good form (style, time, etc.), with force: a general expression of approval and praise: cf. Like blazes, (bricks, or one o'clock). Not to care (or be worth) a bean, to hold in little esteem, think lightly of, be of little value: the allusion is to the small worth or value of a bean, or the black of a bean (1297). Beany, in good humour—a metaphor drawn from the stable. To know beans, to be well-informed, sharp and shrewd, within the charmed circle of the cultured elect, fully equipped in the upper storey. To know how many blue beans make five white ones, this is generally put in the form of a question, the answer to which is Five, if peeled, and those who fail to get tripped by the catch are said to know how many, etc.; in other words to be cute, knowing, wide awake. To draw a bean, to get elected: an allusion to the former use of beans in balloting; to have the bean, to be first and foremost; in reference to the custom of appointing as king of the company on Twelfth Night, the man in whose portion of the cake the bean was found (1556). Also proverbial, Hunger maketh hard beans sweet; It is not for idleness that men sow beans in the wind (i.e. labour in vain); Every bean hath its black. Three blue beans in a blue bladder, noisy talk, clap-trap, froth (1600).

Bean Belly. A Leicestershire man: from a real or supposed fondness of the inhabitants of this county for beans.

Bean-feast. An annual feast given by employers to their work-people. The derivation is uncertain, and, at present, there is little evidence to go upon. Some have suggested its origin in the prominence of the bean goose, or even beans at these spreads; others refer it to the French bien, good, i.e. a good feast (by-the-bye, tailors call all good feeds bean-feasts); whilst others favour its derivation from the modern English bene, a request or solicitation, from the custom of collecting subscriptions to defray the cost: also called a wayzgoose (q.v.).

Bean-feaster. One who takes part in a bean-feast (q.v.).

Beano. The same as bean-feast (q.v.).

Bean-pole (stick, or wood). A lanky person, lamp-post (q.v.).

Bean Trap. A swell mobsman, stylish sharper.

Beany. Full of vigour, fresh, like a bean-fed horse.

Bear (Stock Exchange). 1. Applied, in the first instance, to stock sold by jobbers for delivery at a certain date, on the chance of prices falling in the meantime, thus allowing the seller to re-purchase at a profit. At first the phrase was probably To sell the bear-skin, the buyers of such bargains being called bear-skin jobbers, in allusion to the proverb, To sell the bear's skin before one has caught the bear. So far, the origin of the phrase seems pretty clear; of the date of its introduction, however, nothing is known. It was a common term in Stock Exchange circles, at the time of the bursting of the South Sea Bubble in 1720, but it does not seem to have become colloquial until much later. In these transactions no stock was delivered, the difference being settled according to the quotation of the day, as is the practice now in securities dealt with for the account. At present the term for such an arrangement is time-bargain. 2. Hence a dealer who speculates for a fall. The earliest instance noted of this transferred usage is of the date 1744. Fr., baissier: see Bull, Stag, and Lame Duck. 3. A rough, unmannerly, or uncouth person; hence the pupil of a private tutor, the latter being called a Bear-leader (q.v.); also called formerly Bridled-bear. To play the bear, to behave roughly and uncouthly (1579). As verb, to act as a bear (q.v.). Are you there with your bears? A greeting of surprise at the reappearance of anybody or anything; are you there again; What, again! so soon? The phrase is explained by Joe Miller, as the exclamation of a man who, not liking a sermon he had heard on Elisha and the bears, went next Sunday to another church, only to find the same preacher and the same discourse (1642). To bear the bell (coals, palm, etc.), see the nouns; to bear low sail, to demean oneself humbly (1300); to bear a blow, to strike; to bear up, to cheat, swindle: see Bonnet. Bear a bob, (1) lend a hand, look sharp! look alive! (2) To aid, to assist, to take part in anything.

Beard. In spite of one's beard, in opposition or defiance to a purpose; to one's beard, openly, to one's face; to run in one's beard, to oppose openly, face out; to take by the beard, to attack resolutely; to make one's beard, to outwit, delude; to make one's beard without a razor, to cheat; to beard; to put against the beard, to taunt.

Bearded Cad (Winchester College). A porter, employed by the College to convey luggage from the railway station to the school: the term originated in an extremely hirsute individual who at one time acted in the capacity.

Bear-garden. A scene of strife and tumult.

Bear-garden Jaw, subs. (old). Rough, unmannerly speech; talk akin to that used in bear gardens and other places of low resort (Grose).

Be-argered. Drunk: see Screwed.

Bearing. Acting as a bear (q.v.); or using artifices to lower the price of stock to suit a bear account.

Bearings. To bring one to one's bearings, to bring one to reason, to act as a check.

Bear-leader. A travelling tutor.

Bear-play. Rough, tumultuous behaviour.

Bearskin-jobber. See Bear.

Beast. 1. Applied to anything unpleasant; or, to that which displeases; e.g. It's a perfect beast of a day, for it's an unpleasant day: see Beastly. 2. A new cadet at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point. 3. (Cambridge University). One who has left school and come up to Cambridge for study, before entering the University: because he is neither man nor boy.

Beastly. In modern colloquial usage applied to whatever may offend the taste: cf. awful, everlasting, etc. (1611).

Beat. 1. This word is used in many ways, its precise meaning often depending on its qualifying adjective. It is said of both men and things; for example, a live beat is anybody or anything that surpasses another, and the sense is not derogatory in the least. A dead beat, on the other hand, is the name given to a man who sponges on his fellows. [Probably from that sense of beat signifying to overcome; to show oneself superior to, either in a good or bad sense.] 2. A daily round, duty, work, etc.; and, figuratively, a sphere of influence (1788). As adj. (1) overcome, exhausted, done up: generally dead-beat (q.v.); (2) hence baffled, defeated. As verb, to swindle, deceive, cheat. Daisy beat, a swindle of the first water, a robbery of magnitude. To beat hollow (to sticks, ribands, fits, all creation, to shivers, etc.), to excel, surpass (1759). To get a beat on, to get the advantage of. Other phrases are, to beat the air, to strive to no purpose (1375); to beat the streets, to walk to and fro; to beat over the old ground, to discuss topics already treated; to beat about the bush, to act cautiously, approach warily or in a roundabout way (1572); to beat up, to visit unceremoniously; to beat the brains, (head, etc.), to think persistently; to beat out, to exhaust, overpower; to beat the hoof, to walk, go on foot, plod, prowl (1596); to beat the rib (see Rib). To beat the booby (or goose), to strike the hands across the chest and under the armpits to warm them: formerly to beat Jonas; to beat the road, to travel by rail without paying. That beats the Dutch! (see Dutch). To beat daddy mammy, to tattoo, practise the elements of drum beating. To beat down to bed-rock (see Bedrock). To beat out, impoverished, in one's last straits, hard up.

Beater-cases. Boots, shoes, now nearly obsolete. Trotter-cases (q.v.) being the usual term nowadays.

Beaters. The feet: Barclay in Shyp of Folys (1509), speaks of 'night watchers and beters of the stretes:' see Creepers.

Beating-stock. A subject of frequent chastisement: cf. Laughing-stock.

Beauetry. Dandyism, dandy outfit: a humorous imitation of coquetry (1702).

Beau Trap. 1. A loose stone in a pavement, under which water lodges, and which, on being trodden upon, squirts it up. 2. A well-dressed sharper, on the look-out for raw country visitors and such like. 3. A fop, well-dressed outwardly, but whose linen, person, and habits generally are unclean.

Beauty. A term applied, on the rule of contrary, to the plainest or ugliest cadet in the class at the United States Military Academy at West Point. It was great beauty, it was a fine sight; That's the beauty of it, That's just as it should be: as affording special pleasure or satisfaction.

Beauty-sleep. Sleep before midnight, the idea being that early hours conduce to health and beauty (1850).

Beauty-spot. Ironically of a pimple or other blemish on the face or other exposed parts of the person.

Beaver, subs. (common). An old term for a hat; goss, cady (1528): at one time hats were made of beaver's fur—hence the name; the term is still occasionally applied to tall chimney-pot hats, but for many years silk has replaced the skin of the rodent in their manufacture. In beaver, in a tall hat and non-academical garb, as distinguished from cap and gown (1840). See also Bever.

Beck. 1. A constable: see Beak. 2. A parish beadle; apparently the term was applied to all kinds of watchmen: see Harman-beck. As verb, to imprison: amongst Dutch thieves bekaan has the same signification.

Bed. To put to bed with a pickaxe and shovel, to bury.

Bedder (Cambridge University). A charwoman; one who makes the beds and performs other necessary domestic duties for residents in college.

Bed-fagot. 1. Applied contemptuously to a woman; cf. hussy, witch, etc. 2. A wanton.

Bedfordshire. Sheet alley (q.v.), blanket fair (q.v.), the land of Nod (q.v.), etc. (1665).

Bedful of Bones. A skinny, bony, bedfellow (1621).

Bedoodle. To confuse, to bewilder: probably a corrupt form of the old English verb bedazzle, used by Shakespeare in Taming of the Shrew, rv. v. 46 (1593).

Bedpost. In the twinkling of a bedpost, instantaneously, with great rapidity: originally in the twinkling of a bedstaff (1660). Among English synonyms may be included:—in a jiffy, in two two's, in a brace of shakes, before you can say Jack Robinson, in a crack, in the squeezing of a lemon. Between you and me and the bed-post, a humorous tag to an assertion; i.e. between ourselves—I know what you say, but, between you and me, etc. . . . the thing is absurd: sometimes the last word is varied by post, door post, or gate post—any prop will serve (1831).

Bedrock. To get down to bedrock, to get at the bottom of matters, thoroughly understand, get in on the ground floor (q.v.): a miner's term, alluding to the solid rock underlying superficial and other formations. Bedrock fact, a chiel that winna ding, the incontestable and incontrovertible truth.

Bedtime. The hour of death (Alford).

Bee. 1. A sweet writer. 2. A busy worker. 3. A working party of neighbours and friends for the benefit of one of their number; as when a party of settlers combine to erect a log-house for a newcomer, or when farmers unite to gather one another's harvests in succession: e.g. apple-bee, raising bee, etc.; hence, a social gathering for some specific purpose, as spelling bee. To have a bee in the head (brains, garret, or bonnet), to have queer ideas, be half-cracked, flighty; this phrase is of considerable antiquity, being traced back to a Scotch writer, Gawin Douglas by name [1474-1521], Bishop of Dunkeld, who used it in a translation of Virgil's Aeneid. Hence, bee-bonneted (or bee-headed) crazed; bee-head, a crazy pate: see Buffle.

Beef. 1. Human flesh (a transferred sense); i.e. obese, stolid, fleshy like an ox. 2. By a further transition beef has also come to signify men, strength, hands; More beef! a bo'sun's exhortation to extra exertion. To be in a man's beef, to wound with a sword (Grose). To cry (or give) beef (or hot beef), to give an alarm, pursue, set up a hue and cry: it has been suggested that beef in this case is a rhyming synonym for thief. To be dressed like Christmas beef, to be decked out in one's best raiment. To make beef, to run away, decamp. Beef to the heels, like a Mullingar Heifer, said of a stalwart man, or a fine woman; i.e. one whose superiority is manifest from the crown of the head to the sole of the foot; literally, all beef down to the heels. Beef up! phr. Put on your strength! Give a long pull and a strong pull! To beef it, originally a provincialism, but now common in the East End of London: to take a meat meal, more particularly of beef.

Beef-brained. Doltish, obtuse, thickheaded.

Beef-head. A dolt; a stupid, thick-headed person: see Buffle.

Beefment. On the beefment, on the alert, on the look out.

Beef-stick. The bone in a joint of beef. At mess it is First come, best served; and those who come last sometimes get little more than the beef-stick.

Beef Straight. See Straight.

Beef-witted. See Beef-brained (1594).

Beefy. Fleishy, unduly thick, obese: a run of luck and good fortune, generally, is likewise referred to as beefy. Whence beefiness.

Bee-line. To take (or make) a bee-line, to go direct, as the crow flies, without circumlocution. Bees, when fully laden with pollen, make for the hive in a straight, or bee-line. One of the American railways is called the Bee Line Road from the direct route it takes between its termini (1849).

Beelzebub's Paradise. Hell, the infernal regions.

Been. Been in the sun, drunk: see Screwed. Been measured for a new umbrella, said sportively of any one appearing in new, ill-fitting clothes, or who has struck out a new line of action, the wisdom of which is doubtful: the joke is an old one and refers to a man of whom it was said that nothing fitted him but his umbrella. Oh yes, I've been there; I know what I am about. A popular exclamation: when it is said of a man that he has been there, shrewdness, pertinacity, and experience are implied.

Beer. To drink beer, also, to do a beer. To be in beer, drunk: see Screwed. To think no small beer of oneself, to possess a good measure of self-esteem (1840): see Small-beer.

Beer and Bible. An epithet applied sarcastically to a political party which first came into prominence during the last Beaconsfield Administration, and which was called into being by a measure introduced by the moderate Liberals in 1873, with a view to placing certain restrictions upon the sale of intoxicating drinks. The Licensed Victuallers, an extremely powerful association whose influence extended all over the kingdom, took alarm, and turned to the Conservatives for help in opposing the bill. In the ranks of the latter were numbered the chief brewers; the leaders of the association, moreover, had mostly strong high-church tendencies, while one of them was president of the Exeter Hall organization. The Liberals, noting these facts, nicknamed this alliance the Beer and Bible Association; the Morning Advertiser, the organ of the Licensed Victuallers, was dubbed the Beer and Bible Gazette; and lastly, electioneering tactics ascribed to them the war cry of Beer and Bible! This so-called Beer and Bible interest made rapid strides: in 1870 the Conservatives were at their low-water mark among the London constituencies; but, in 1880, they had carried seats in the City, Westminster, Marylebone, Tower Hamlets, Greenwich, and Southwark. A notable exception to this strange fellowship was Mr. Bass [afterwards Lord Bass], of pale-ale fame, who held aloof from opposition to the measure in question. Anent the nickname Beer and Bible Gazette given to the Morning Advertiser, it may be mentioned that it had already earned for itself a somewhat similar sobriquet. For a long time this paper devoted one-half of its front page to notices of publicans and tavern-keepers; while the other half was filled up with announcements of religious books, and lists of preachers at the London churches and chapels. This gained for the paper the sobriquet of the Gin and Gospel Gazette.

Beer and Skittles. Generally, Not all beer and skittles, i.e. not altogether pleasant, or couleur de rose.

Binge. A drinking bout.

Bingham's Dandies. The 17th Lancers.

Bingo. Brandy, or other spirituous liquor: thought to be a humorous formation from B. for brandy (cf. B. and S.) and stingo (Grose). Hence, Bingo boy, a tippler, drunkard; Bingo mort, a drunken woman.

Bingy. Bad, ropy butter; nearly equivalent to vinnied (q.v.): in the English Dialect Society's Chester Glossary, bingy is given as a peculiar clouty or frowsty taste in milk—the first stage of turning sour.

Binnacle Word. A fine (or affected) word, which sailors jeeringly offer to chalk up upon the binnacle (Grose).

Birch-broom. A room. Like a birch-broom in a fit, said of a rough towzly head.

Birchin Lane. To send one to Birchin Lane, to castigate, flog: cf. Strap oil, etc.

Birch-oil. A thrashing: cf. Strap-oil, Hazel-oil, etc.

Bird. When a play is hissed the actors say The bird's there! see Goose. As verb, to thieve, steal, look for plunder: used by Ben Jonson. A bird of one's own brain, one's own conception. The bird in the bosom, one's secret pledge, conscience. Birds of a feather, of like character. Also proverbs and proverbial sayings—Some beat the bush and others take the bird; A child's bird and a knave's wife lead a sore life; The bird that fouleth its own nest is not honest, A bird in hand is worth three in the wood (or bush); An old bird is not caught with chaff; To kill two birds with one stone; The early bird catches the worm.

Bird-cage. 1. A bustle, an article of feminine attire, used for extending the skirts of the dress: at one time constructed of such a size and in such a manner as to be not altogether unlike an elongated bird-cage: among English synonyms may be mentioned canary cage, backstaircase, false hereafter, bishop. 2. A four-wheeled cab. 3. The paddock at the Newmarket race-course where saddling takes place.

Birdlime. 1. Time. 2. A thief (1705).

Bird's-eye (Bird's-eye Fogle, Bird's-eye Wipe). A silk handkerchief spotted with eye-like markings: see Billy (1665).

Birdsnye. An endearment: cf. Pigsnye.

Bird-witted. Inconsiderate, thoughtless, easily imposed on (Grose) (1605).

Birk. A crib (q.v.), i.e. a house.

Birth day Suit. Nudity, buff (q.v.): Fr., en sauvage (1771).

Bishop. 1. A warm drink: wine, orange (or lemon), peel, and sugar—but variously compounded (1703). 2. A bustle (q.v.): a pad worn on the back part of the waist, and designed to give prominence to the skirt: see Bird-cage (1848). 3. A chamber-pot, jerry, jordan, it (q.v.). 4. (Winchester College). The sapling with which a fagot is bound together. As verb, (1) to burn marks into a horse's teeth, after he has lost them by age; or, by other deceptive arts to give a good appearance to a bad horse: by bishopping, a horse is made to appear younger than he is: the expression is derived from the name of a person who initiated the practice; (2) to murder by drowning: now obsolete: like Burke and Boycott from the name of an individual; a man named Bishop drowned a boy in Bethnal Green, in 1831, to sell the body for dissecting purposes.

Bismarquer. To cheat, play foul at cards (or billiards): the policy of Prince Bismarck, the German Chancellor, in 1865-66 roused the indignation of Europe.

Bit, Bite, Byte. 1. Money: see Rhino (1532). 2. A coin varying in value according to locality—usually, however, to the silver piece of the lowest denomination. Four-penny pieces are still called bits in English, though more popularly known as Joeys (q.v.) (1748). 3. In disparagement—bits of girls, bits of children, bit of a place, bit of one's mind, candid (and uncomplimentary) criticism, opinion, etc. Bitwise, little by little.

Bitch, subs. (low). 1. A woman: not now in literary use, though formerly so (1400). 2. A man: it has long since passed out of decent usage (1500). As verb, (1) to yield (or give up an attempt) through fear (Grose). (2) to spoil, bungle. To stand bitch, to make tea, or do the honours of the tea table, or to perform a woman's duty.

Bitch Booby. A country girl (Grose).

Bitch-daughter. The night-mare.

Bitch-fou. Very drunk, beastly drunk: see Screwed.

Bitch Party. A party composed of women: originally an Oxford term for a tea-party: cf. Hen-party (q.v.), and Stag-party.

Bite. 1. Money: generic: see Bit and Rhino. 2. An imposition, piece of humbug, sell, do: cf. Bilk, Bam, Bargain, and Sell: the sense runs through all stages, from jocular hoaxing to downright swindling; also in the sense of disappointment, as in the old proverb, the biter bit (1711). 3. A sharper, cheat, trickster (1742). 4. Applied in a transferred sense to anybody or anything suspected of being different to what it appears, but not necessarily in a bad sense. 5. One who drives a hard bargain, a close fist. 6. A Yorkshireman. 7. An irregular white spot on the edge or corner of a printed page, caused by the frisket not being sufficiently cut out (1677). As verb, (1) to deceive, cheat, swindle, do, or take in: formerly used both transitively and passively; now only in latter (1699); (2) to strike a hard bargain; (3) to steal; e.g. to bite the roger, to steal a port-manteau, to bite the wiper, to purloin a handkerchief. As intj., (1) formerly an equivalent to the modern Sold! Done! etc. (1704); (2) (Charterhouse). A warning Cave! To do a thing when the maggot bites, to do it when the fancy takes one, at one's own sweet will. To bite one's hips, to regret a word or action. To bite one's name in, to drink heavily, tippie, drink greedily. To bite on the bridle, to be pinched in circumstances, reduced, in difficulties. Phrases: To bite upon the bridle, to wait impatiently, like a restless horse; To bite the dust (ground, sand), etc., to die; to bite the tongue, to repress speech; to bite the thumb at, (1) 'To threaten or defie by putting the thumb nail into the mouth, and with a ierke (from the upper teeth) make it to knock' (Cotgrave); (2) to insult: to bite one's ear, to caress fondly; to bite the ear, to borrow.

Biter. 1. A practical joker, hoaxer, one who deceives, a cheat and trickster: the term now only survives in the proverbial expression, the biter bit (1669). 2. A wanton.

Bite-up. An unpleasant altercation.

Bit-faker (or Turner-out). A coiner of bad money.

Bit-faking. Manufacturing base coin, counterfeiting.

which the death penalty is carried out; these events are (or were) generally arranged to fall on the day in question.

Black-gown. A collegian, learned man (1710).

Blackguard, subs. (common). A man coarse in speech, and offensive in manner, scamp, scoundrel, disreputable fellow: the term, as now used, is one of opprobrium, and although a good deal of uncertainty hangs about its history and derivation, it seems pretty clear that a certain amount of odium has always been attached to the word (1532). As adj., of or pertaining to a blackguard, to the scum or refuse of society, vile, vicious (1760). As verb, to act like a ruffian, use filthy (or scurrilous) language, play the vagabond (or scoundrel).

Black Hole. 1. Cheltenham, from the number of retired Anglo-Indians who live there: cf. Asia Minor. 2. A barrack punishment-cell (or lock-up), guard-room: the official designation till 1868.

Black Horse. The Seventh Dragoon Guards: so called from the regimental facings, black on scarlet: occasionally The Blacks. During the reign of George II., the corps was known as The Virgin Mary's Guard, and is often called Strawboots (q.v.).

Black House. A place of business where hours are long, and wages at starvation rates; a sweating house.

Black-humour. Melancholy.

Black Indies. Newcastle-on-Tyne: from its trade, coal: the term is now obsolete, but it was in common use at the latter part of the eighteenth century.

Bladderdash. Nonsense, bunkum (q.v.), spoof (q.v.): a portmanteau word—bladder balderdash.

Bladder of Lard. A bald-headed person.

Bladderskate. See Bletherskate.

Blade. A roysterer, gallant, sharp, keen, free-and-easy man, good fellow (1595).

Blamed. Used to emphasize a statement: it partakes of the nature of an oath, being often used instead of doomed or damned: in America the expression is more of a colloquialism than it is in England (1835). Hence, Blame it! a round-about oath.

Blamenation! Damnation!

Blandiloquence. Smooth, flattering speech, carneying (q.v.). Hence Blandiloquous, smooth-speaking, flattering (1615).

Blank (Blanked, Blankety). Euphemistic oaths: clearly an outcome of the practice of representing an oath, for decency's sake, in printing, by a dash or blank space; e.g. d—d.

Blank - charter. Liberty to do as one likes.

Blarm me! A euphemistic oath.

Blarney. Blandishment, soft speech, or sawder, gross flattery, gammon. [From Castle Blarney in Ireland, in the wall of which, difficult of access, is placed a stone. Whoever is able to kiss this is said thereafter to be able to persuade to anything (Grose).] As verb, (1) to wheedle, coax, flatter grossly; (2) to pick locks (American thieves).

Blasted. Execrable, confounded: Grose has blasted fellow for an abandoned rogue (1682).

Blatantation. Noisy effusion, swagger.

Blater. A calf: probably a corruption of bleater (1714).

Blather. Noisy talk, voluble nonsense: cf. Blether. As verb, to talk volubly, noisily, nonsensically.

Blatherskite. 1. Boastful disputatious swagger: cf. Bletherskite. 2. A swaggerer, boaster, one who talks volubly and nonsensically.

Blayne's Bloodhounds. The Eighty-ninth Foot, now the second battalion of the Royal Irish Fusiliers: they obtained this nickname during the Irish Rebellion in 1798.

Blaze. Blaze-away! Look sharp; stir your stumps — an injunction to renewed and more effective effort.

Blazer. Originally applied to the uniform of the Lady Margaret Boat Club of St. John's College, Cambridge, which was of a bright red and was called a blazer: now applied to any light jacket of bright colour worn at cricket or other sports. Prof. Skeat [N. and Q., 7 S., iii. 436] speaking of the Johnian blazer, says it was always of the most brilliant scarlet, and thinks it not improbable that the fact suggested the name which subsequently became general.

Blazes. 1. The infernal regions. As a verb, to blaze is employed in a manner closely bordering on slang: thus one says of an action that it is a blazing shame; that he has a blazing headache; that so-and-so is a blazing thief; that such a job is blazing hard work; that it is a blazing hot day. 2. The brilliant habiliments of flunkeys: from the episode of Sam Weller and the swarry. Old blazes, the devil. Go to blazes! Go to the devil; go to hell — used in imprecations (1851). Like blazes, vehemently, with extreme ardour. How (Who, or What) the blazes, How (What or Who) the Dickens. Drunk as blazes (or blazers), very drunk, beastly drunk: see Screwed.

Blind Harper. A beggar counterfeiting blindness, playing on a fiddle (Grose).

Blind-man's Holiday. Formerly, the night or darkness; now usually applied to the time between lights, when it is too dark to see, but often not dark enough to light up, and a holiday or rest from work is taken (1599).

Blind Monkeys. An imaginary collection at the Zoological Gardens, which are supposed to receive care and attention from persons fitted by nature for such office and for little else. An idle and useless person is often told that he is only fit to lead blind monkeys. Another form is for one man to tell another that he knows of a suitable situation for him. How much a week? and what to do? are natural questions, and then comes the scathing and sarcastic reply, Five bob a week at the doctor's—you're to stand behind the door and make the patients sick. They won't want no physic when they sees your mug (Hotten).

Blindo. A drunken spree. As verb, to die: see Hop the Twig.

Blind Side. The side that is weakest, the most assailable side (1606).

Blind Story. A story without point.

Blink. To drink: see Lush.

Blinker. 1. The eye: cf. Winker, Peeper, Optic, etc. (1816). 2. In pl. Spectacles, barnacles (1732). 3. In Norfolk, a black eye. 4. A hard blow in the eye. Blank your blinkers, a euphemistic oath.

Blink-fencer. A vendor of spectacles.

Bloat. 1. A drowned body. 2. A drunkard. 3. A contemptuous name for a human being.

Bloated Aristocrat. A man swollen with the pride of rank or wealth; also a general sobriquet applied by the masses to the classes. Bloated has long been employed in a similar sense. Swift spoke of a certain statesman as a bloated minister (1731).

Bloater. See My bloater.

Blob. To talk, patter. Blob-tale, a tell-tale, tale-bearer (1670).

Block. A stupid person, hard unsympathetic individual, one of mean, unattractive appearance (1534): see Buffle. Barber's block (1), the head (1637); (2) a fop. A chip of the same (or old) block, a man or thing exhibiting the same qualities as he or that with which a comparison is made (1627). As deaf as a block, as deaf as may be. To cut a block with a razor, inconsequent argument, futile endeavour, incongruous application of means (or ability) to the end in view (1774). To block a hat, to crush a man's hat over the eyes, to bonnet (q.v.).

Blockers. See Block ornaments.

Block head (or Block-pate). A stupid fellow, woodenhead; see Buffle.

Block House. A prison, house of detention: see Cage (1624).

Block Island Turkey, subs. (American). Salted cod-fish. Connecticut and Rhode Island. Slang delights in naming fish as flesh. For some curious examples, see Two-eyed Steak.

Block Ornament (or Blocker). 1. A small piece of meat of indifferent quality, a trimming from a joint, etc.: as exposed for sale on the blocks or counters of butchers' shops in cheap neighbourhoods, opposed to meat hung on hooks (1848). 2. A queer-looking man or woman — one odd in appearance.

Block-pate. See Blockhead.

Blake (or Bloak). A man, fellow (1851).

Blood. 1. A fop, dandy, buck, or fast man: originally in common use, but now obsolete: from that legitimate sense of the word which attributes the seat of the passions and emotions to the blood — hence, a man of spirit; one who has blood worth mention, and, in an inferior sense, he who makes himself notorious, whether by dress or rowdiness: in the last century, especially during the regency of George IV., the term was largely in vogue to denote a young man of good birth or social standing about town; subsequently, it came to mean a riotous, disorderly fellow (1562). 2. Money: generic: see Rhino. As verb, to deplete of money, victimise: a figurative usage of to bleed; i.e. surgically, to let or draw blood by opening a vein.

Blood and Entrails. The British ensign is so nicknamed by Yankee sailors; English salts return the compliment by jokingly speaking of the American flag as The Gridiron and Doughboys (q.v.).

Blood and Thunder. A beverage of port wine and brandy mixed.

Blood and Thunder Tales. Low class fiction, the term being generally applied to works dealing with the exploits of desperadoes cut-throats, and other criminals: also called Awfuls, Penny dreadfuls, Gutter literature, Shilling shockers.

Blood-an'-'ouns. An abbreviated form of an old and blasphemous oath.

Blood-curdler (or Blood-freezer). A narration or incident which makes the flesh creep, that which stirs one's feelings strongly (and generally repulsively): said of a sensational murder, a thrilling ghost-story, etc.

Blood for Blood. When tradesmen exchange wares, setting the cost of one kind off against another instead of making payment in currency, they are said to give blood for blood.

Blood-Freezer. See Blood-curdler.

Blood-red Fancy. A particular kind of handkerchief sometimes worn by pugilists and frequenters of prize fights: see Billy.

Blood Suckers. The Sixty-third Regiment of Foot, now the first battalion of the Manchester Regiment. 2. An extortioner, sponger (1668).

Blood-tub. A rowdy, blustering bully, rough: this nickname was peculiar to Baltimore; the Blood-tubs were said to have been mostly butchers, and to have got their epithet from having, on an election day, dipped an obnoxious German's head in a tub of warm blood, and then driven him running through the town.

Bloody, adj. (low). — An intensive difficult to define, and used in a multitude of vague and varying senses, but frequently with no special meaning, much less a sanguinary one: generally = an emphatic, very: in general colloquial use from 1650-1750, but now vulgar or profane. The origin is not quite certain; but there is good reason to think that it was at first a reference to the habits of the bloods or aristocratic rowdies of the end of the 17th and beginning of the 18th cent. The phrase bloody drunk was apparently as drunk as a blood (cf. as drunk as a lord); thence it was extended to kindred expressions, and at length to others; probably in later times, its associations with bloodshed and murder (cf. a bloody battle, a bloody butcher) have recommended it to the rough classes as a word that appeals to their imagination. Compare the prevalent craving for impressive or graphic intensives as seen in the use of jolly, awfully, terribly, devilish, deuced, damned, ripping, rattling, thumping, stunning, thundering, etc.

Bloody Back. A soldier.

Bloody Chasm. To bridge the bloody chasm, a favourite expression with orators who, during the years immediately succeeding the Civil War, sought to obliterate the memory of the struggle. The antithetical phrase is to wave the bloody shirt (q.v.).

Bloody Eleventh. The Eleventh Regiment of Foot, now the Devonshire Regiment: at the battle of Salamanca (fought with the French) the corps was nearly cut to pieces, whence its sanguinary sobriquet. At Fontenoy and Ostend also, it was hard-pressed and nearly annihilated.

Bloody Jemmy. An uncooked sheep's head.

Bloody Shirt. To wave the bloody shirt, to keep alive factious strife on party questions. Primarily it was the symbol of those who, during the Reconstruction period at the close of the rebellion of the Southern or Confederate States, would not suffer the Civil War to sink into oblivion out of consideration for the feelings of the vanquished.

Bloomer. A mistake: said to be an abbreviated form of blooming error.

Bloming (often Bloomin'). This word, similar in type to blessed, blamed, and other words of the kind, is, as used by the lower classes, a euphemism, but it is also frequently employed as a mere meaningless intensive (1726).

Bloss. Generic for a woman—girl, wife, or mistress: Shakespeare, in Titus Andronicus (1588, iv. ii. 72), employs it in the sense of one lovely and full of promise—Sweet blowse you are a beautiful blossom sure; Tennyson (1847) in the Princess (v. 79), uses the expression, My babe, my blossom, ah, my child!

Blossom-faced. With red bloated face.

Blossom-nose. A tippler, Lushington (q.v.). Blossom-nosed, red with tipping: cf. Grog-blossom, Rum-bud.

Blot. To blot the scrip, to put an undertaking into writing: the modern phrase is, to put it in black and white. Hence, To blot the scrip and jark it, to stand engaged, bound for any one (Grose).

Blovi-ate. To talk aimlessly and boastingly, indulge in high falutin': said to have been in use since 1850.

Blow. 1. A shilling: see Rhino. 2. A drunken frolic, spree. As verb, (1) to boast, brag, gas, fume, storm—generally to talk boastfully or self-assertingly of oneself or one's affairs (1400); (2) to inform, expose, betray, peach (1575); (3) to lie; (4) employed euphemistically for damn—generally in the imperative—Blow it! hang it! (5) to lose or spend money: cf. Blue; (6) to indulge in a frolic or spree; (7) (Winchester School), to blush. To bite the blow, to steal goods, prig. To blow a cloud, to smoke. To blow hot and cold, to vacillate, be inconsistent; to blow the bellows, to stir up passion; to blow off, to relieve one's feelings, get rid of superfluous energy; to blow into one's ear, to whisper privily; to blow one's own trumpet, to brag, sound one's own praises; to blow the coals (or the fire), to fan the flame of discord, promote strife; to blow up, to scold, rate, rail at; To blow great guns, to blow a hurricane or violent gale: sometimes to blow great guns and small arms (1839). To blow one's bazoo, to boast, swagger, gasconade. To blow oneself out, to eat heartily, gorge: hence, blow out, a heavy feed (or entertainment), a tuck in. To blow the gab (or gaff), to reveal (or let out) a secret, peach (Grose). To blow the grampus, to throw cold water on a man who has fallen asleep when on duty. To blow together, to make garments in a slovenly manner. To blow up sky-high, to do everything with unusual energy. To blow upon, to betray, tell tales of, discredit, defame.

Blow-boul (or Blow-boll). A tippler: see Lushington.

Blow-book. A book containing indelicate or 'smutty' pictures (1708).

Blowed. To be blowed, Blowed is here a euphemism, frequently little more than a thinly-veiled oath. To be cursed, sent about one's business.

Blowen (or Blowing). Originally a woman, without special reference to moral character, now a showy courtesan or a prostitute (1688).

Blower. 1. A girl: contemptuous in opposition to jomer (q.v.) (Grose). 2. A good talker, boaster, gas-bag. 3. A pipe.

Blowhard. A Western term of abuse: a newcomer may, in one and the same breath, be called a blarsted Britisher, a coyote, and a blowhard.

Blowse (Blowsy, Blouze, Blowzy). 1. A beggar's trull, a wench. 2. A slatternly woman, especially one with dishevelled hair. Thought to be of canting origin.

Blowze. 1. A beggar's trull, beggar wench, wench (1573). 2. A fat, red-faced bloated wench, or one whose head is dressed like a slattern (Bailey).

Blubber. 1. The mouth: see Potato-trap (Grose). 2. A woman's breasts. As verb, to cry, weep: in contempt (1400): also Blab.

Blubber and Guts. Obesity; a low term.

Blubber-belly. A fat person.

Blubber Head. A foolish, empty-headed individual: see Buffie.

Blucher (ch. hard) (Winchester College). 1. A College prefect in half power: their jurisdiction does not extend beyond Seventh Chamber passage, though their privileges are the same as those of other prefects: they are eight in number. 2. A non-privileged cab plying at railway stations: railway companies recognise two classes of cabs, called the Privileged . . . and the Bluchers, non-privileged cabs, which are admitted to stations after all the privileged have been hired, named after the Prussian Field-Marshal who arrived on the field of Waterloo only to do the work that chanced to be undone.

Bludgeoner. A bully, pimp, ponce.

Bludger. A thief, who does not hesitate to use violence; literally one who will use a bludgeon.

Bludget. A female thief, who decoys her victims into alley-ways, etc., to rob them.

Blue. 1. A policeman: from the colour of the uniform; also (collectively), Blues, Men in Blue, Blue-boys, Blue-bottles, Blue-devils, Royal Regiment of Foot-guards Blue. 2. Among licensed victuallers and their customers in certain districts of Wales a compromise between the half-pint and the pint pot; it is not recognised as a legal measure by the authorities, but the Board of Trade has pointed out to the local authorities that there is nothing in the Weights and Measures Act to prevent the use of the Blue or to make its possessor liable to penalties, always provided of course that the vessel is not used as a measure. 3. A scholar of Christ's Hospital: a blue-coat boy: also derived from the colour of the clothes—a blue druggist gown or body with ample skirts to it, a yellow vest underneath in winter time, small clothes of Russia duck, worsted yellow stockings, a leathern girdle, and a little black worsted cap, usually carried in the hand, being the complete costume; this was the ordinary dress of children in humble life in Tudor times. 4. Short for blue-stocking (q.v.); formerly a contemptuous term for a woman having (or affecting) literary tastes (1788). 5. Female learning or pedantry (1824). 6. At Oxford and Cambridge a man is said to get his blue when selected as a competitor in inter-university sports: the University colours are, for Oxford, dark blue; and for Cambridge, light blue: cf. to get one's silk, said of a barrister when made King's Counsel. As adj., (1) applied, usually in contempt, to women of literary tastes: Fr., bleue celle-la; (2) indecent; smutty; obscene; (3) gloomy, fearful, depressed, low-spirited: cf. to look blue, blue funk, and in the blues. As verb, (1) to blush (1709); (2) to pawn, pledge, spend, actually to get rid of money quickly: cf. Blew; (3) to miscalculate, to make a mess of anything, to mull; (4) to steal, plunder; to be blued, to be robbed: see Prig. By all that's blue, a euphemistic oath: probably by Heaven: it may be compared with the French parbleu, synonymous with par Dieu. Till all is blue, (1) to the utmost, the end, for an indefinite period: Smyth, in his Sailors' Word Book, says this phrase is borrowed from the idea of a vessel making out of port and getting into deep water; (2) tipsy: see Screwed (1616): cf. Fr., avoir un coup d'bleu. To look blue, to be confounded, surprised, astonished, annoyed, disappointed. Fr., en rester tout bleu, en être bleu, en bailler tout bleu (1600). To make the air blue, to curse, swear. True blue, faithful, genuine, real: an allusion to blue as the colour of constancy (1383).

Blue Apron. A tradesman (1721).

Bluebacks. 1. The paper money of the Confederates: originating, as in the case of United States paper currency greenbacks, in the colour of the printing on the reverse. 2. The Orange Free State paper money.

Blue Bellies. A nickname bestowed by Southerners, during the Civil War, upon their opponents of the North, whose uniform was blue: also Boys in blue, Yanks, etc. The Southerners, on the other hand, received such names as The scesh, Rebs, and Johnny Rebs, the latter being sometimes shortened to Johnnies. The grey uniform of the Confederates likewise caused them to be styled Boys in grey, and Greybacks.

Blue Bills (Winchester College). A tradesman's bills sent home to the parents and guardians of students.

Blue Billy. A handkerchief (blue ground with white spots) sometimes worn and used as a colour at prize-fights: see Billy.

Blue Blanket. 1. The sky: probably suggested by Shakespeare's Blanket of the dark (Macbeth, i. v.) (1720). 2. A rough overcoat made of coarse pilot cloth.

Blue Blazes. See Blazes.

Blue Boar. A venereal disease.

Blue Bottle. 1. A policeman, constable, watchman (1598). 2. A serving-man: blue was the usual habit of servants (1602). 3. A term of reproach for a servant.

Blue Boy. A bubo, a tumour or abscess with inflammation.

Blue-boys. The police.

Blue Butter. Mercurial ointment.

Blue-cap. A Scotchman (1596). 2. A kind of ale (1822).

Blue-coat. 1. A constable, guardian of public order. 2. A serving man, and, 3. (generally) one of the lower orders: as wearing coats of blue (1600). 4. A blue-coat boy: see Blue.

Blued (or Blewed). Tipsy, drunk: see Screwed.

Blue Dahlia. Something rare (or seldom seen), a rara avis.

Blue Devils. 1. Dejection, lowness of spirits, hypochondria (1786). 2. Delirium tremens (1818). Hence, such derivatives as Blue devilage, Blue devilry, Blue devilism; and Blue devilily.

Blue Fear. Extreme fright: the same as Blue funk (q.v.).

Blue Flag. A blue apron (q.v.) worn by butchers, publicans, and other tradesmen (Grose).

Blue Funk. Extreme fright, nervousness, dread (1856).

Blue-gown. 1. A loose woman: a blue-gown was the dress of ignominy for a harlot in the house of correction (Nares). 2. A beggar, especially a licensed beggar who wore the dress as a badge.

Blue Hen's Chickens. The inhabitants of Delaware. The nickname arose thus: Captain Caldwell, an officer of the first Delaware regiment in the American War of Independence, was noted for his love of cock-fighting. Being personally popular, and his regiment becoming famous for their valour, they were soon known as game-cocks; and as Caldwell maintained that no cock was truly game unless its mother was a blue hen, his regiment, and subsequently Delawareans generally, became known as blue hen's chickens, and Delaware as the Blue Hen State for the same reason. A boaster is also often brought to book by the sarcasm Your mother was a blue hen no doubt.

Blue Horse. The Fourth Dragoon Guards (1746-88).

Blue-jacket. A sailor; especially used to distinguish seamen from the marines.

Blue Laws. Puritanic laws of extreme severity: originally of enactments at New Haven, Conn., U.S.A.

Blue Lightning. A revolver.

Blue Monday. A Monday spent in dissipation and absence from work.

Blue Moon. Once in a blue moon, extremely seldom, an unlimited time, a rarely recurring period: an old phrase, first used in the sense of something absurd; a blue moon, like the Greek Kalends, is something which does not exist (1526).

Blue Murder (or Blue Murders)

Cries of terror (or alarm), a great noise, an unusual racket: cf. Fr., morbleu.

Blueness. Indecency (1840). Fr., horreurs, bêtises, gueulées.

Blue Noses. The natives of Nova Scotia: in allusion, it is said, to a potato of that name which Nova Scotians claim to be the best in the world; Proctor, however, hazards the suggestion that the nickname refers to the blueness of nose resulting from intense cold (1837).

Blue Peter. The signal or call for trumps at whist: properly a blue flag with white square in centre, hoisted as a signal for immediate sailing.

Blue Pigeon. 1. Lead used for roofing purposes: see Blue pigeon flyer. 2. The sounding lead.

Blue Pigeon Flyer. A thief who steals lead from the roofs of buildings. Hotten thus explains the modus operandi. Sometimes a journeyman plumber, glazier, or other workman, when repairing houses, strips off the lead, and makes away with it. This performance is, though, by no means confined to workmen. An empty house is often entered and the whole of the roof in its vicinity stripped, the only notice given to the folks below being received by them on the occasion of a heavy downfall of rain. The term flyer has, indeed, of late years been more peculiarly applied to the man who steals the lead in pursuance of his vocation as a thief, than to him who takes it because it comes in the way of his work (1789). Fr., limousineur, gras-doublier, mastaroufleur. To fly the blue pigeon, to steal lead from the roofs of houses.

Blue Pill. A bullet; also Blue plum and Blue whistler.

Blue Ribbon (or Riband). A first prize, the greatest distinction.

Blue Ruin. Gin: see Drinks (1817).

Blues. 1. Despondency, hypochondria, depression of spirits: a shortened form of blue devils (q.v.). 2. The police. 3. The Royal Horse Guards Blue are popularly so known from their blue uniform with scarlet facings: the corps first obtained the name of Oxford Blues in 1690, to distinguish it from a Dutch regiment of Horse Guards dressed in blue, commanded by the Earl of Portland, the former being commanded by the Earl of Oxford; subsequently the regiment was, during the campaign in Flanders [1742-45], known as the Blue Guards.

Blue Skin. 1. Formerly a contemptuous term for a Presbyterian. 2. A half-breed—the child of a black woman by a white man.

Blue Squadron. Mixed blood; properly one with a Hindoo strain: Eurasians belong to the blue squadron: cf. Touch of the tar brush.

Blue Stocking. A literary lady: applied usually with the imputation of pedantry. The generally received explanation, is that the term is derived from the name given to certain meetings held by ladies in the days of Dr. Johnson for conversation with distinguished literary men. One of the most eminent of these literati was a Mr. Benjamin Stillingfleet, who always wore blue stockings, and whose conversation at these meetings was so much prized, that his absence at any time was felt to be a great loss, so that the remark became common, We can do nothing without the blue stockings, hence these meetings were sportively called blue-stocking clubs, and the ladies who attended them blue-stockings. It is stated that the name specially arose in this way. A foreigner of rank refused to accompany a friend to one of these parties on the plea of being in his travelling costume, to which there was the reply, Oh! we never mind dress on these occasions; you may come in bas bleus or blue stockings, with allusion to Stillingfleet's stockings, when the foreigner, fancying that bas bleus were part of the necessary costume, called the meeting ever after the Bas-bleu Society. In modern slang the term blue-stocking is abbreviated into blue. Derivatives are blue-stockingism, blue-stocker, etc. (1738).

Blue Stone. Gin (or whisky) of so bad a quality that it can only be compared to vitriol, of which blue-stone is also a nickname in the north of England and Scotland.

Blue Tape. Gin: see Drinks.

Blue Water. The open sea.

Blue Whistler. A bullet.

Bluey. 1. Lead: see Blue pigeon. 2. A bushman's bundle, the outside wrapper of which is generally a blue blanket—hence the name: also called swag (q.v.) and drum (q.v.).

Bluey-hunter. A thief who steals lead, as described under Blue pigeon flyer (q.v.) (1851).

Bluff. An excuse, pretence, that which is intended to hoodwink or blind. As verb, to turn aside, stop, hoodwink, to blind as to one's real intention.

Bluffer. 1. An innkeeper (Grose).
2. A bo'sun.

Blunderbuss. A stupid blundering fellow: see Buffle (Grose).

Blunt. Generic for money, especially ready money: see Rhino (1714).

Blunted. Possessed of money, in comfortable circumstances, warm (q.v.)

Blunt-worker. A blunderer (1440). Blunt-working, blundering.

Blunty. A stupid fellow, one slow-witted: see Buffle.

Blur-paper. A scribbler (1603).

Blush. To blush like a black or blue dog, to blush not at all (1579).

Blushet. A modest girl, a little blusher (1625).

B. N. C. Brasenose: the initials of Brasen Nose College, Oxford: in spite of the nose over the gate, the probability is that the real name was Brasinium; it is still famous for its beer.

Bo (or Boh). To cry (or say) Bo to a goose (battledore, bull, etc.), to open one's mouth, to speak.

Boanerges. A loud, vociferous speaker: i.e. a son of thunder (Mark iii. 17).

Board. 1. To borrow. 2. To accost, ask of, make a demand; i.e. to come to close quarters (1547). To board in the smoke, to take one un-awares, or by surprise. On the board, enjoying all the privileges and emoluments of a competent workman: when an apprentice becomes a regular journeyman he goes on the board: tailors usually work squatting on a low raised platform—hence possibly the expression. To keep one's name on the board, to remain a member of a College. To sweep the board, to pocket all the stakes. To begin the board, to take precedence. To go by the board, to go for good and all, be completely done for, ruined. To sail on another board, to change one's tactics.

Boarding House (or School).

Newgate: but equally applicable to any gaol—New York thieves apply it to the Tombs: see Cage.

Boardman. A standing patterer: they endeavour to attract attention to their papers, or, more commonly, pamphlets . . . by means of a board with coloured pictures upon it, illustrative of the contents of what they sell: this in street technology is board work: sometimes called a sandwich man.

Board of Green Cloth. A card (or billiard) table.

Boat. Formerly the hulks; latterly to any prison: see Cage. To have an oar in another's boat, to meddle, busybody. To sail in the same boat, to pursue the same course. As verb, (1) originally to transport: the term is now applied to penal servitude. To get the boat (or to be boated), to be sentenced to a long term of imprisonment—equivalent to transportation under the old system; (2) to join as partner: evidently a corruption of to be in the same boat, i.e. to be in the same position or circumstances. To bail one's own boat, to be self-reliant, to paddle one's own canoe.

Bob. 1. A shilling: see Rhino (1812).
2. A shoplifter's assistant; one who receives and carries off stolen goods: Fr., nonne (or noune). 3. Gin: see Drinks (1749). 4. An infantry soldier; generally Light-bob, i.e. a soldier of the light infantry (1544). 5. (Winchester College). A large white jug containing about a gallon in measure, and used for beer. As adj., lively, nice, in good spirits (1721). As verb, to cheat, trick, disappoint: also to bob out of (1605). As intj., Stop! That's enough! Dry bob (Wet bob) (Eton College), the first-named is one who devotes himself to cricket or football and other land sports; the latter one who goes in for rowing and aquatics generally (1844). All is bob, All's safe, serene, gay (1786). Bear a bob! Be brisk! look sharp! To give the bob, (1) to give the door: used by Massinger—It can be no other but to give me the bob; (2) to befool, mock, impose upon. S'help me bob, a street oath, equivalent to So help me God; a corrupted form of the legal oath: So help is pronounced swelp: also s'help the cat—my greens—the tatars, etc. To shift one's bob, to go away.

Bobber. 1. A fellow-workman, mate, chum. 2. A spurious plural of bob (q.v.)=a shilling.

Bobbery. A noise, squabble, disturbance, racket (1813).

Bobbish. Frequently pretty bobbish, i.e. hearty, in good health and spirits, clever, spruce (1819); also bobbishly.

Bobby. A policeman: this nickname, though possibly not derived from, was certainly popularised by the fact that the Metropolitan Police Act of 1828 was mainly the work of Mr., afterwards Sir Robert Peel. Long before that statesman remodelled the police, however, the term Bobby the beadle was in use to signify a guardian of a public square or other open space. There seems, however, a lack of evidence, and examples of its literary use prior to 1851 have not been discovered. At the Universities the Proctors are or used to be called bobbies.

Bobby-twister. A burglar or thief (q.v.), who, when resisting pursuit or capture, uses violence.

Bob-cull. A good fellow, pleasant companion.

Bob my pal. A girl, i.e. gal.

Bobstick. A shilling's worth.

Boco. 1. The nose: see Conk. 2. Nonsense, bosh.

Bodier. A blow on the side of the body.

Bodkin. Amongst sporting men, a person who takes his turn between the sheets on alternate nights, when an hotel has twice as many visitors as it can comfortably lodge; as, for instance, during a race-week. A transferred sense from To ride (or sit) bodkin, to take a place and be wedged in between other persons when the accommodation is intended for two only (1638).

Body-cover. A coat.

Body of Divinity Bound in Black Calf. A parson: see Devil-dodger.

Body-slugs. Fetters: see Darbies (1819).

Body-snatcher. 1. A bailiff or runner: the snatch was the trick by which the bailiff captured the delinquent. 2. A policeman. 3. A generally objectionable individual: also mean body snatcher. 4. A violator of graves, resurrectionist: also Body-lifter (1833). 5. An undertaker.

Bog. 1. The works at Dartmoor, on which convicts labour; during recent years a large quantity of land has been reclaimed in this way. 2. An abbreviated form of bog-house (q.v.). As verb, to ease oneself, evacuate.

Bogey. See Bogy.

Boggle-de-Botch (Boggledy-Botch). A bungle, mess, hash: Boggle, however, is more frequently employed (1834).

Bog-house (Bog-shop). A privy, necessary house (1671).

Boglander. An Irishman: from the boggy and marshy character of a considerable portion of the Emerald Isle (1698).

Bog Latin. A spurious mode of speech simulating the Latin in construction: see Dog Latin.

Bog-oranges. Potatoes: see Bogland, with an eye to the vegetable in question forming a very substantial food staple of the Irish peasantry.

Bog-trotter. An Irishman: Camden, however (c. 1605), speaking of the debateable land on the borders of England and Scotland, says, Both these dales breed notable bog-trotters; so the original sense would appear to have been, accustomed to walk across bogs; as a nickname for an Irishman, it dates at least from 1671. Bog-trotting, living among bogs; e.g. a bog-trotting Irishman (1758).

Bogus. Spurious, fictitious, sham, not what it professes to be: of American origin. Dr. Murray, who, while slyly satirising the bogus derivations circumstantially given, says: Dr. S. Willard, of Chicago, in a letter to the editor of this Dictionary, quotes from the Painesville (Ohio) Telegraph of July 6 and Nov. 2, 1827, the word bogus as a subs., applied to an apparatus for coining false money. Mr. Eber D. Howe, who was then editor of that paper, describes in his Autobiography (1878) the discovery of such a piece of mechanism in the hands of a gang of coiners at Painesville, in May 1827; it was a mysterious-looking object, and some one in the crowd styled it a bogus, a designation adopted in the succeeding numbers of the paper. Dr. Willard considers this to have been short for tantrabogus, a word familiar to him from his childhood, and which in his father's time was commonly applied in Vermont to any ill-looking object; he points out that tantrabogs is given in Halliwell as a Devonshire word for the devil. [Bogus seems thus to be related to bogy, etc.] (1825).

Bogy, Bogy. A landlord: Fr., Monsieur Vautour (vautour = a vulture). Ask Bogy, a reply to a question (Grose): modern God knows! or Bramah knows! under similar circumstances. As adj., sombre, dark in tint: said of a painting exhibiting these characteristics.

Bohemian. A gipsy of society; one who either cuts himself off, or is by his habits cut off, from society for which he is otherwise fitted; especially an artist, literary man, or actor, who leads a free, vagabond, or irregular life, not being particular as to the society he frequents, and despising conventionality generally: used with considerable latitude, with or without reference to morals (O.E.D.).

Bohn (American College). A translation, pony (q.v.): the volumes of Bohn's Classical Library are in such general use among under-graduates in American Colleges, that Bohn has become a common name for a translation.

Boil. To betray, peach (1602). To boil down, to reduce in bulk by condensing or epitomising. To boil the pot, to gain (or supply) one's livelihood. To keep the pot boiling, to keep going. The blood boils, of strong emotion, anger, or resentment. To boil one's lobster, to enter the army after having been in the church.

Boiled Shirt (Biled Shirt or Boiled Rag). A white shirt (1854).

Boiler (Winchester College). 1. A plain coffee-pot used for heating water: called fourpenny and sixpenny boilers, not from their price, but from the quantity of milk they will hold: τὸ πᾶν boilers were large tin saucepan-like vessels in which water for hot bidets (q.v.) was heated. 2. See Pot boiler.

Boiler - plated. Imperturbable, stolid, stoical.

Boilers (or Brompton Boilers).

1. The Kensington Museum and School of Art, in allusion to the peculiar form of the temporary buildings, and the fact of their being mainly composed of, and covered with sheet iron. This has been changed since the extensive alterations in the building, or rather pile of buildings, and the term boilers is now applied to the Bethnal Green Museum: cf. Pepper-boxes. 2. (Royal Military Academy). Boiled potatoes: Fried potatoes are called Greasers.

Boiling (or Biling). Whole boiling (or biling), the whole lot, entire quantity: also whole gridiron (q.v.) and All the shoot (1835).

Boke. The nose.

Bold. Bold as brass, audaciously forward, presumptuous, without shame.

Boler (or Bowler). A stiff felt hat (1861).

Bolly (Marlborough College). Pudding.

Bolt. The throat (1821). As verb (at one period slang, now recognised), 1. To escape, leave suddenly: an instance of a word once orthodox, subsequently fell into disrepute, but which, after having for generations served as a mere slang term, is now nearly as respectable as when Dryden wrote: I have reflected on those who, from time to time, have shot into the world, some bolting out on the stage with vast applause, and others hissed off. 2. The usage in the United States indicates the right of the independently minded to revolt against partisan rule, as He bolted the party nominations: also substantively, as He has organised a bolt. 3. To eat hurriedly without chewing, swallow whole, gulp down. To get the bolt, sentenced to penal servitude. To turn the corner of Bolt Street, to run: cf. Queer Street. See Moon.

Bolter. 1. One who hides himself in his own house, or some privileged place, and dares only peep, but not go out of his retreat (Dyche): the privileged places referred to were such as Whitefriars, the Mint, Higher and Lower Alsatia, etc. 2. One who bolts; especially applied to horses, but figuratively to persons in the sense of one given to throwing off restraint; in American parlance one who kicks (q.v.) (1840). 3. One who exercises the right of abstention in regard to his political party.

Bolt-in-Tun. Bolted, run away (1819). A term founded on the cant word bolt, and merely a fanciful variation very common among flash persons, there being in London a famous inn so called; it is customary when a man has run away from his lodgings, broken out of jail, or made any other sudden movement, to say, the Bolt-in-tun is concerned, or, he's gone to the Bolt-in-tun instead of simply saying, he has bolted, etc.

Boltsprit (Boltspreet, Bowsprit). The nose: see Conk (1690).

Bolus. An apothecary, a doctor.

Boman. A gallant fellow.

Bombay Ducks. 1. The Bombay regiments of the East India Company's army. 2. A well-known delicacy: the Anglo-Indian relation of the Digby chick; alive, it is a fish called the bummelo; dead and dried, it becomes a duck.

Bomb, Bumbo. A nickname given to various mixtures, but chiefly to cold punch; Smollett, in a note in Roderick Random, speaks of it as a liquor composed of rum, sugar, water, and nutmeg (1748).

Bona. A girl, young woman, belle: a modern form, in a good sense, of Bona-roba (q.v.). As adj., good.

Bonanza. A happy hit, stroke of fortune, success: from the Spanish, a fair wind, fine weather, prosperous voyage; Bonanza was originally the name of a mine in Nevada, which once, quite unexpectedly, turned out to be a big thing, and of enormous value; now applied to any lucky hit or successful enterprise.

Bona-roba, subs. (old). A wench, specially a courtesan, a showy wanton. The term was much in use among the older dramatists. Ben Jonson speaks of a bouncing bona-roba; and Cowley seems to have considered it as implying a fine, tall figure. Bona in modern times is frequently employed to signify a girl or young woman, without reference to morals (1589).

Bonce. 1. The head (probably a derivative of sense 2) 2. A large marble (origin unknown, but see Alley).

Bond. Our Lady's bonds, pregnancy, confinement.

Bone. 1. A bribe to a Customs House officer. 2. Something relished (1884). As adj., good, excellent; \diamond is the vagabonds' hieroglyphic for bone, or good, chalked by them on houses and street corners as a hint to succeeding beggars. As verb, (1) to filch, steal, make off with, take into custody (1748); (2) to bribe, grease the palm; (3) to study: see Bohn. To bone standing, to study hard. The ten bones, the fingers: as in asseveration, By these ten bones! To have a bone in the leg (arm, throat, etc.), a humorous reason for declining to do anything, a feigned obstacle (1542). Hard (or dry) as a bone, as hard (or dry) as may be (1833). Bones of me (you, etc.), an exclamation (1588). To feel a thing in one's bones, to feel acutely, understand perfectly. A bone to pick, a difficulty to solve, nut to crack, a matter of dispute, something disagreeable needing explanation, a settlement to make. A bone of contention, a source of contention or discord. To make bones of, to make objection to, have scruples of, hesitate. To find bones in, to be unable to credit, believe, or swallow. To put a bone in one's hood, to break one's head. To carry a bone in the mouth (or teeth), of a ship when cutting through the water making foam about her. One end is pretty sure to be bone, an old-time saying equivalent to an admission that All is not gold that glitters; that the realization of one's hopes never comes up to the ideal formed of them. To be upon the bones, to attack (1616).

Bone-ache. The lues venerea (1592).

Bone-baster. A staff, cudgel (1600).

Bone-box. The mouth: see Potato-trap (Grose).

Boodle. 1. A crowd, company, the whole boiling (q.v.): often caboodle (q.v.). 2. Capital, stock-in-trade: specially something secret, peculiar and illegal; also money used for bribery, money that comes as spoils, the result of some secret deal, the profits of which are silently divided; the term is likewise used to cover the booty of a bank robber, or the absconding cashier. Amongst the thieving fraternity huddle is used to denote money that is actually spurious or counterfeit, and not merely money used for nefarious purposes, but which as currency is genuine enough. 3. Generic for money: see Rhino. 4. A fool, noodle: see Buffle. To carry boodle, to utter base money. Fake-boodle, a roll of paper over which, after folding, a dollar bill is pasted, and another bill being loosely wrapped round this, it looks as if the whole roll is made up of a large sum of money in bills.

Boodler. 1. One who bribes or corrupts. 2. A man uttering base money: swindlers of this type generally hunt in couples; one carrying the bulk of the counterfeit money, and receiving the good change as obtained by his companion, who utters the boodle piece by piece; the game is generally worked so that at the slightest alarm the boodle carrier vanishes and leaves nothing to incriminate his confederate.

Booget. A travelling tinker's basket (Harman) (1587).

Book. 1. In betting (more especially in connection with horse-racing), an arrangement of bets made against certain horses, and so calculated that the bookmaker (q.v.) has a strong chance of winning something whatever the result (1836). By the book, formally, in set phrase. In a person's good (or bad) books, in favour (or disfavour). Out of one's book, mistaken, out of one's reckoning. Without one's book (1) unauthorised, (2) by rote. To drive to book, to compel to give evidence on oath. To bring to book, to bring to account. To speak like a book, to speak with authority. To talk like a book, to speak in set terms, as a precisian. To take a leaf out of a person's book, to take example by him. 2. The first six tricks at whist. 3. The copy of words to which music is set, the words of a play: formerly only applied to the libretto of an opera (1768). To know one's book, to have made up one's mind, to know what is best for one's interest. To suit one's book, to suit one's arrangements, fancy, or wish.

Book Answerer. A critic (1760).

Book-form. The relative powers of speed (or endurance) of race-horses as set down in the Racing Calendar or book.

Bookie (or Booky). A bookmaker (q.v.).

Bookmaker. A professional betting-man. The English Encyclopædia says:—In betting there are two parties—one called layers, as the bookmakers are termed, and the other backers, in which class may be included owners of horses as well as the public. The backer takes the odds which the bookmaker lays against a horse, the former speculating upon the success of the animal, the latter upon its defeat; and taking the case of Cremorne for the Derby of 1872, just before the race, the bookmaker would have laid 3 to 1, or perhaps £1000 to £300 against him, by which transaction, if the horse won, as he did, the backer would win £1000 for risking £300, and the bookmaker lose the £1000 which he risked to win the smaller sum. At first sight this may appear an act of very questionable policy on the part of the bookmaker; but really it is not so, because so far from running a greater risk than the backer, he runs less, inasmuch as it is his plan to lay the same amount (£1000) against every horse in the race, and as there can be but one winner, he would in all probability receive more than enough money from the many losers to pay the stated sum of £1000 which the chances are he has laid against the one winner, whichever it is (1862).

Bookmaker's Pocket. A breast-pocket made inside the waistcoat, for notes of large amount (Hotten).

Books. 1. A pack of cards; used mainly by professional card-players: also called devil's books, book of broads, book of briefs: Fr., jeu de paix, cartouchière a portées (a prepared pack used by sharpers) (1706). 2. (Winchester College). (a) The prizes formerly presented by Lord Say and Sele, now given by the governing body, to the Senior in each division at the end of Half. (b) The school is thus divided:—Sixth Book—Senior and Junior Division; the whole of the rest of the School is in Fifth Book—Senior Part, Middle Part, Junior Part, each part being divided into so many divisions, Senior, Middle, and Junior, or Senior, 2nd, 3rd, and Junior, as the case may require.

Formerly, there was also Fourth Book, but it ceased to exist about twenty-five years ago (1840). (c) Up at books, in class, repeating lessons: now called Up to books. (d) Books chambers, on Remedies (a kind of whole holiday), we also went into School in the morning and afternoon for an hour or two without masters; this was called books chambers; and on Sundays, from four till a quarter to five. (Mansfield). (e) To get or make books, to make the highest score at anything.

Bookwork. Mathematics that can be learned verbatim from books—all that are not problems.

Bookwright. An author.

Boom. This word is a comparatively recent production in its slang sense; and is used in a variety of combinations; as, The whole State is booming for Smith, or The boys have whooped up the State to boom for Smith, or The State boom is ahead in this State, etc., etc. Stocks and money are said to be booming when active; and any particular spot within a flourishing district is regarded as within the boom-belt. A successful team or party is said to be a booming squad, and we even read of boomlets to express progress of a lesser degree. As subs. commercial activity, rapid advance in prices, flourishing state of affairs—synonymous with extreme vigour and effectiveness (1875). As verb, to make rapid and vigorous progress, advance by leaps and bounds, push, puff, bring into prominence with a rush (1874). To top one's boom off, to be off (or to start) in a certain direction.

Boomer. 1. One who booms or causes an enterprise to become flourishing, active or notorious. 2. Anybody (or anything) considerably above the average: a bouncing lie, a fine woman, a horse with extra good points, etc., etc.

Boomerang. Acts or words, the results of which recoil upon the person from whom they originate: the boomerang is properly an Australian missile weapon which, when thrown, can be made to return to the thrower; or which, likewise, can be caused to take an opposite direction to that in which it is first thrown (1845).

Booming. Flourishing, active, in good form, large, astonishing.

Boom-passenger. A convict on board ship: prisoners on board convict ships were chained to, or were made to crawl along or stand on the booms for exercise or punishment (Hotten).

Bord You! An expression used to claim the next turn in drinking.

Bore (old slang, but now recognised). Anybody (or anything) wearisome or annoying. As verb, (1) to weary or to be wearied: the word does not appear in English literature prior to 1750; (2) push (or thrust) out of the course: amongst pugilists it signifies to drive an opponent on to the ropes of the ring by sheer weight, whilst amongst rowing men it denotes the action of a coxswain in so steering a boat as to force his opponent into the shore, or into still water, thus obtaining an unfair advantage; also analogously applied to horse-racing (1672).

Born. All one's born days, one's lifetime (1740). Born weak, said of a vessel feebly built.

Bosh. Nonsense, rubbish, stuff, rot — anything beneath contempt: Murray says from the Turkish bosh lakerdi, empty talk; the word became current in England from its frequent occurrence in Morier's Persian novel, Ayesha [1834], an extremely popular production. As verb, to humbug, spoil, mar. As intj., nonsense! Rubbish! It's all my eye!

The term is very often used in connection with bally (q.v.).

Boung. See Bung.

Boung Nipper. See Bung-nipper.

Bounty-jumper. A man who, receiving a bounty when enlisting, deserts, re-enlists, and receives a second bounty. The War of the Rebellion is responsible for this, as for many other colloquialisms; as the conflict lengthened out, men became in great request, and large bounties were offered by the North for volunteers. This bounty was found to be a direct incitement to bad faith and unfair dealing. Men would enlist, receive their bounty, join their regiment, and then decamp, to reappear in another State, to go through the same performance, in some cases many times over.

Bounty-jumping. Obtaining a bounty by enlisting and then deserting.

Bourbon. 1. In American politics a Democrat of the straitest sect; a fire-eater: applied, for the most part, to the Southern Democrats of the old school — uncompromising adherents of political tradition — behind the age, and unteachable. 2. A superior kind of whisky: originally that manufactured in Bourbon, Kentucky.

Bouse, Bowse, Booze. 1. Drink or liquor of any kind (1567). 2. A drinking bout, carouse. As verb, to drink to excess, tipple, swill: both this and the substantive seem to have been known as early as 1300, but neither came into general use until the sixteenth century, from which period both forms have become more and more colloquial: see Lush. Hence, bouser, a toper; bousing, hard drinking; and bousy, intoxicated or screwed. To bouse the jib, to tipple, drink heavily: a different word — from bouse, to haul with tackle, i.e. to make oneself tight: see Screwed.

Bousing Ken. A tavern, inn, drinking den: now applied to a low public house: see Lush crib (1567).

Buff-coat. A soldier, one who wears a buff coat (1670).

Buffer. 1. A dog: this term in varying forms from 1567 down to the present time—Harman gives it as bufe (1567) and bufa (1573); Rowlands as buffa (1610); Head as bugher (1673); whilst in The Memorials of John Hall it first appears as buffer. 2. A man, fellow—sometimes with a slightly contemptuous meaning; generally speaking a familiar mode of address, as in Old Buffer, although even this form may be used disparagingly (1749). 3. A boxer, one of the fancy (1819). 4. A rogue that kills good sound horses only for their skins (B. E.). 5. One who took a false oath for a consideration. 6. A pistol (1824). 7. A smuggler, rogue, cheat. 8. A boatswain's mate, one of whose duties it is—or was—to administer the Cat. 9. A stammerer (1382).

Buff Howards. The Third Regiment of Foot, now the East Kent Regiment; also The Buffs: from its facings and Colonel from 1737 to 1749; also the Nut-crackers (q.v.); and the Resurrectionists (q.v.), from its re-appearing at the Battle of Albuera after being dispersed by the Polish Lancers; also the Old Buffs, from its facings, and to distinguish it from the 31st, the Young Buffs; but the most ancient Old Buffs were the Duke of York and Albany's Maritime Regiments raised in 1664, and incorporated into the 2nd or Coldstream Guards in 1689.

Buffle. A fool, a stupid person: Murray quotes it as occurring in 1655, but the term was in use in 1580.

Buffle-head. An ignoramus, stupid, obtuse fellow (1659).

Buffleheaded. Stupid, idiotic, foolish.

Buffo. A comic actor, singer in comic opera (or burlesque) (1764).

Bufs (The). The Third Regiment of Foot in the British army: see Buff Howards.

Buffy. Intoxicated: see Screwed.

Bug. 1. A breast-pin. 2. An Englishman (old Irish); Grose says, because bugs were introduced into Ireland by Englishmen!! 3. In the United States bug is not confined, as in England, to the domestic pest, but is applied to all insects of the Coleoptera order, which includes what in this country are generally called beetles. 4. A person of assumed importance (1771); big bug (q.v.), a person of wealth or distinction; thence cattle-bug, a wealthy stock-raiser; gold-bug, a monied man. Fire-bug, an incendiary. That beats the bugs, a high mead of praise, that beats cock-fighting. As verb, (1) among journeymen hatters, to exchange dear materials for others of less value: Hats were composed of the furs and wools of diverse animals, among which is a small portion of bever's fur—bugging is stealing the bever, and substituting in lieu thereof an equal weight of some cheaper ingredient (Grose). (2) to bribe: bailiffs accepting money to delay service were said to bug the writ; (3) to give, hand over, deliver (1812).

Bugaboo. 1. A sheriff's officer (Grose). 2. A tally-man. 3. A weekly creditor.

Bugaroch. Pretty, comely, handsome (Grose).

Bug-blinding. Whitewashing.

Bugger. 1. A thief (q.v.), one who steals breast-pins from drunken men. 2. A man, a fellow: a coarse term of abuse with little reference to the legal meaning: the French has an exact equivalent: equivalent to bitch (q.v.), as applied to women (1719).

Buggy. A leather bottle.

Bugher. See Buffer.

Bug-hunter. 1. A thief who plunders drunken men. 2. An upholsterer (Lexicon Balatronicum).

Bug-juice. 1. Ginger ale. 2. The Schlechter whisky of the Pennsylvania Dutch—a very inferior spirit: also bug-poison.

Bugle. To bugle it. To abstain from going into class until the last moment, i.e. until the bugle sounds.

Bug Walk. A bed. English synonyms: Bedfordshire, Sheet Alley, Blanket Fair, Land of Nod, doss, rip, Cloth Market.

Bug-word. A word to cause terror, swaggering (or threatening) language; i.e. Bugbear-word (1562).

Build. Properly, to build is to construct, says Murray, for a dwelling and by extension of meaning . . . to construct by fitting together of separate parts; chiefly with reference to structures of considerable size . . . (not, e.g., a watch or a piano). Therefore, when build is applied to the make or style of dress, it is pure slang—It's a tidy build, who made it? A tailor is sometimes called a trousers builder. In the United States, as Fennimore Cooper puts it, everything is built. The priest builds up a flock, the speculator a fortune, the lawyer a reputation, the landlord a town, and the tailor, as in England, builds up a suit of clothes; a fire is built instead of made, and the expression is even extended to individuals, to be built being used with the meaning of formed. I was not built that way; and hence in a still more idiomatic sense to express unwillingness to adopt a specified course or carry out any inconvenient plan. To build a chapel, to steer badly, and so cause a ship to veer round. Not built that way, not to one's taste, in one's line—a general expression of disapproval or dissent, whether said of persons or things.

Bulgarian Atrocities. Varna and Rustchuk Ry. 3 per cent. obligations.

Bulge. The legitimate meaning is extended in many odd ways. Bags (q.v.) bulge, but do not get baggy; and in a similar fashion when a man is all attention his eyes are said to bulge. To go (or be) on a bulge, to drink to excess: see Screwed. To get the bulge on one, to obtain an advantage over, to get the drop on one (1869).

Bulger. Large buster (q.v.).

Bulk. An assistant to a File or Pickpocket, who jostles a person up against the wall, while the other picks his pocket (B. E.).

Bulker. 1. A prostitute of a low type, one who slept on a bulk, a kind of sill projecting from a window (1691). 2. A thief (q.v.): see Bulk (1669).

Bulky. A police constable: said to be a northern term (1821). As adj. (Winchester College); rich, generous (or both): the opposite of brum (q.v.).

Bull. 1. Formerly a blunder or mistake; now generally understood as an inconsistent statement, a ludicrous contradiction, often partaking largely of the nature of a pun: the term was current long before the form Irish bull is met with (1642). 2. A crown, five-shilling piece: formerly bull's-eye (q.v.) (1812). 3. Originally a speculative purchase for a rise; i.e. a man would agree to buy stock at a future day at a stated price with no intention of taking it up, but trusting to the market advancing in value to make the transaction profitable: bull is the reverse of bear (q.v.): the term is now more frequently applied to persons, i.e. to one who tries to enhance the value of stocks by speculative purchases or otherwise; also used as a verb and adjective (1671): on the French Bourse a bull is haussier, in Berlin he is known as liebhaber; and in Vienna contremine. 4. See Bull the cask (or barrel). 5. A teapot with the leaves left in for a second brew. 6. Prison rations of meat, an allusion to its toughness; also generally used for meat without any reference to its being either tough or tender: Fr., bidoche. 7. A locomotive: sometimes bullgine. 8. (Winchester College). Cold beef: introduced at breakfast about 1873. As verb, at Dartmouth College, to recite badly, make a poor recitation. Stale bull, stock held over for a long period with profit. To bull the cask (or barrel), to pour water into a rum cask when empty, with a view to keeping the wood moist and preventing leakage; the water after some time is very intoxicating, and the authorities, not looking with much favour upon wholesale brewing of grog in this way, sometimes use salt water as a deterrent, though even this salt water bull, as it is called, when again poured out, has often proved too attractive for seamen to resist: again it is common to talk in the same way of Bulling a teapot, coffee-pot, etc.; that is, after the first brew has been exhausted, by adding fresh water, and boiling over again, to make a second brew from the old materials. He may bear a bull that hath borne a calf, after little, big things are possible. A bull in a china shop, a simile of reckless destruction. To take the bull by the horns, to meet a difficulty with resolution and courage. To show the bull horn, to make a show of resistance.

Cockall. One that beats all, the 'perfection.'

Cockalorum or Cockylorum. 1. A contemptuous address of anything undersized and self-important. 2. A rough-and-tumble game: the players divide into two opposing bands of from twelve to fourteen each—in fact, the more the merrier. One side 'goes down,' so as to constitute a long 'hogsback'—the last boy having a couple of pillows between himself and the wall, and each boy clasping his front-rank man, and carefully tucking his own 'cocoa-nut' under his right arm, so as to prevent fracture of the vertebræ. When the hogback is thus formed, the other side comes on, leap-frogging on to the backs of those who are down, the best and steadiest jumpers being sent first. Sometimes the passive line is broken quite easily by the ruse of a short high jump, coming with irresistible impulse on a back not expecting weight. Sometimes a too ambitious leap-frogger ruins his party by overbalancing and falling off. It is, however, as the last two or three leap-froggers come on that the real excitement more generally begins. There is absolutely no back-space belonging to the other party left to them; and they are obliged to pile themselves one upon another—Pelion on Ossa, as it is called. When the last man is up it is his duty to say, 'High cockalorum jig jig jig—high cockalorum jig jig jig—high cockalorum jig jig jig—off, off, off,' and then alone is it permissible to fall in one indistinguishable heap to the ground. The repeater of the shibboleth often falls off himself as he is uttering the above incantation—thus losing the victory for his side.

Cock-and-breeches. A sturdy, under-sized man, or boy.

Cock-and-bull-story, subs. (colloquial). An idle or silly story. [Presumably from some old legend of a cock and a bull, a propos to which it should be noted that the French equivalent is coq-à-l'âne, a cock-and-ass] (1603). Hence, disconnected, misleading talk, incredible story, a canard.

Cock-mate. A familiar, intimate, best friend.

Cockney, subs. (colloquial). One born within the sound of Bow-bells. [The origin of cockney has been much debated; but, says Dr. Murray, in the course of an exhaustive statement (Academy, May 10, 1890, p. 320), the history of the word, so far as it means a person, is very clear and simple. We have the senses (1) 'cockered or pet child,' 'nestle-cock,' 'mother's darling,' 'milksoy,' the name being applicable primarily to the child, but continued to the squeamish and effeminate man into which he grows up. (2) A nickname applied by country people to the inhabitants of great towns, whom they considered 'milksoys,' from their daintier habits and incapacity for rough work. York, London, Perugia, were, according to Harman, all nests of cockneys. (3) By about 1600 the name began to be attached especially to Londoners, as the representatives par excellence of the city milksoy. One understands the disgust with which a cavalier in 1641 wrote that he was 'obliged to quit Oxford at the approach of Essex and Waller, with their prodigious number of cockneys.'] Hence, Cockney-shire, London.

Cockpecked. Masculine home-rule: spec. of a tyrannical kind: cf. Hen-pecked.

Cockquean. A man who interests himself in women's affairs: a common form is cotquean.

Cock-robin. A soft, easy fellow (Grose).

Cock-robin Shop. A small printing office: a place where the cheapest work is done at the lowest price: cf. Slopshop.

Cock's - comb. 1. A cap as worn by a buffoon or professional fool. 2. The head. 3. A fop, conceited fool.

Cock's-egg. To send one for a cock's egg. To send on a fool's errand; to gammon (q.v.): cf. pigeon's milk, oil of strappum, strap oil, the squad umbrella, etc.

Cock - shy. 1. A mark, butt, or target; any person or thing that is the centre of jaculation (1834). 2. The establishment of a strolling proprietor, where sticks may be thrown at coconuts or the like, for payment.

Cocksure. Confidently certain; arrogantly sure. [Probably a corruption of 'cocky sure.' Shakespeare (I Henry IV., ii. i.) employs the phrase in the sense of Sure as the cock of a firelock. We steal as in a castle, cocksure: and still earlier usages imply its derivation from the fact that the cock was much surer than the older - fashioned match.] (1549).

Cocksy. Impudent, bumptious, saucy: cf. Cocky.

Cocktail. 1. A prostitute; a wanton. 2. A coward. 3. An upstart, one aping gentility. 4. (American). A drink composed of spirits (gin, brandy, whisky, etc.), bitters, crushed ice, sugar, etc., the whole whisked briskly until foaming, and then drunk 'hot.' As adj., (1) underbred, wanting in 'form' (chiefly of horses). (2) Fresh, foaming: of beer (see subs. 4). (3) (army). Unsoldier-like; anything unworthy of the regular army, e.g. at one time the Volunteer auxiliaries were described as a cocktailed crew.

Cock-up (printers'). A superior; e.g. the smaller letters in the following examples: Y^e Limt^d.

Comp^r.; J^{no}. Smith, Sen^r.; N^o.; London^r: also a large - type initial letter.

Cocky (or Cocking). 1. Pert, saucy, forward, coolly audacious, over confident, 'botty' (1711). 2. (Stock Exchange). Brisk, active. As subs. (old), a term of endearment: see also Cockatoo-farmer.

Cockyolly-bird. A nursery endearment: of birds; cf. dickey - bird, chickabiddy.

Cocoa-nut. The head: Fr., coco: see Crumpet (1834). That accounts for the milk in the cocoa-nut, a rejoinder upon having a thing explained. No milk in the cocoa-nut, insane, silly, cracked.

Cocum (Kocum). 1. Shrewdness, ability, luck, cleverness. [Yiddish.] 2. (publishers'). A sliding scale of profit. [Publishers sometimes issue books without fixing the published price, leaving the retailer to make what he can.] To fight or play cocum, to play double, be wary, cunning, artful (1857).

Cod. 1. Apparently orig. generic for a man: cf. bloke, cove, fellow, etc. Hence in several specialised senses: e.g. 2. A fool, a humbug, an imposition (B. E.), and as verb, to hoax, chaff, take a rise out of. 3. A pal, or friend; generally prefixed to a surname; at Charterhouse, a pensioner (see Thackeray, Newcomes, ii. 333). [Here cod probably = 'codlin,' an old endearment.] 4. A purse; a cod of money, a large sum of money. [A.S. cod or codd, a small bag.]

Coddam (or Coddom). A game played three, four, or more a side. The only 'property' required is a coin, a button, or anything which can be hidden in the clenched hand. The principle is simplicity itself—'Guess whose hand it's in.' If the guesser 'brings it home,' his side takes the piece, and the centre man works it. If the guess be wrong, a chalk is taken to the holders, who go on again.

Codding. Nonsense, humbug, chaff: see Cod.

Codger. A familiar address, especially old codger, a curious old fellow, odd fish, rum character; a precise, and sometimes mean or miserly man (1760).

Codland. Newfoundland: cf. Cod-preserves.

Codling. A raw youth.

Cod-preserves. The Atlantic.

Cod's-head. A stupid fellow, a fool: see Buffle (1675).

Colly-wobbles. The stomach-ache, flatulency.

Colour. 1. A handkerchief worn as a badge by prize-fighters and other professional athletes. Each man chose his own, and it was once a practice to sell them to backers to be worn at the ring-side: see Billy. In racing circles the colours are the owner's, and are shown in the jockeys' caps and jackets. 2. Payment: e.g. I have not seen the colour of his money—I have not received payment. Coloured on the card, having the colours in which a jockey is to ride inserted on the card of the race. Off colour, exhausted, run down, seedy. To colour one's meerschaum, to get brandy-faced, to drink one's nose into a state of pimples and scarlet.

Colquarron. The neck: see Scrag.

Colt. 1. One new to the office, the exercise of any art, etc.; e.g. a professional cricketer during his first season, a first-time juryman, a thief in his novitiate. 2. A rope, knotted at one end, and whipped at the other. 3. A thief's billy (q.v.). 4. A burglar's livery - stable keeper: a colt-man (Grose). 5. An attendant on a serjeant at his making. As verb, (1) to thrash: colting, a thrashing. (2) To cause a person to stand treat by way of being made free of a new place, to make one pay one's footing. Hence, collage, the footing paid by colts on their first appearance.

Colt's Tooth. To have a colt (or colt's tooth), to be fond of youthful pleasures; in the case of elderly persons, to have juvenile tastes; to be of wanton disposition and capacity. [In allusion to a supposed desire to shed the teeth and see life over again.] (1500).

Columbine. A prostitute.

Columbus. Failure. A regular Columbus, an utter failure, a 'dead frost': Fr., Il pleut != the play is a failure.

Comb. To comb one's hair, to take to task, scold, keep in order. Sometimes to thrash, and generally ill-treat: also to comb down, to comb one's noddle with a three-legged (or joint) stool (1593).

Comb - brush. A lady's maid (1750).

Combie. A Combination room, the parlour in which college dons drink wine after Hall: also see Combination.

Combination. A woman's undergarment, shift and drawers in one. Also Combie, and (American) Chemiloon (chemise and pantaloons).

Come. 1. To practise, understand, act the part of: cf. Come over and Come tricks. 2. To lend: e.g. Has he come it? To make drunk come, to become intoxicated: see Screwed. To come about one, to circumvent: cf. Come over and Come round. To come down from the walls, to abandon a position. To come it, (1) to proceed at a great rate, to make a splash and dash (in extravagance), to cut a figure. (2) To inform; (3) to show fear; (4) to succeed: spec. in You can't come it, i.e. you cannot succeed. To come it strong, to exaggerate, lay it on thick, carry to extremes. To come John (or Lord Audley), see John Audley. To come off, to happen, occur, result from (1609). Come off the grass (or the tall grass), None of your airs! Don't put it on so! Don't tell any more lies! Fr., As-tu fini tes manières (or magnes)? ne fais donc pas ta Sophie, and ne fais donc pas ton fendart. To come out (1) to make an appearance, display oneself, express oneself vigorously, make an impression: sometimes in an intensified form. to come out strong: cf. Come it strong (1637); (2) to turn out, result: e.g. How did it come out? (3) to make a first appearance in society. To come out of the little end of the horn, to fare badly. To come over, to influence, overreach, cheat. To come the old soldier (or any person or thing) over one, to imitate, overbear, wheedle, rule by an assumption of authority: Fr., essayer de monter un bateau à quelqu'un; or monter le coup or un battage (1713). To come round, to influence, circumvent, persuade: cf. Come over and come about, sense 1. To come the gum game, to over-reach by concealment. To come through a side door, to be born illegitimately. To come to stay, to be endowed with permanent qualities. To come to (or up to) time, to answer the call of 'Time!' after the thirty seconds' rest between round and round, hence by analogy, to be on the alert, ready. To come up smiling, to laugh (or grin) at punishment; hence (generally) to be superior to rebuff or disaster, face defeat without flinching. To come up to the chalk: see Scratch. To come the artful, to essay to deceive; To come the heavy, to affect a vastly superior position; To come the ugly, to threaten; To come the nob (or the don), to put on airs; To come the lardy-dardy, to dress for the public and 'look up to your clobber'; To come the serjeant, to issue peremptory orders; To come the spoon, to make love; To come the gipsy, to try to defraud; To come the Rothschild to pretend to be rich; and To come the Traviata (prostitutes, now obsolete), to feign consumption, to put on 'the Traviata cough' (q.v.) with a view to beguiling charitable males.

Come-down. A fall, whether of pride or worldly prospects, an abandonment of something for something else of less value or moment. As verb, used either independently or in combination: e.g. To come down, to come down handsome, or to come down with the dust, dues, dibs, ready, oof, shiners, blunt, needful, (1) to pay, i.e. to 'part'; or to lay down (as in payment); to fork out: see Shell out (1701); (2) to abate prices.

Comical. A napkin. To be struck comical, to be astonished.

Coming. Wanton, forward, sexual (1750).

Commercial. 1. A tramping rogue or vagabond: cf. Traveller. 2. A commercial traveller.

Commission (or Mish). A shirt. [From the Italian.]

Commister. A clergyman: also camister (q.v.).

Common-doings. Every-day fare: cf. chicken-fixings. [A phrase of Western origin, at first restricted in its meaning, but now including ordinary transactions as compared to those either large or peculiarly profitable; applied to men, actions, and things. 'What shall we do?' says a poor frontiersman's wife, when she hears of a Federal officer who is to take up his quarters at her cabin for a day; 'I can't give him common-doings.']

Commoner-grub (Winchester College). A dinner formerly given by Commoners to College after cricket matches. [Commoners are boys not on the foundation.]

Commonney. A clay marble: cf. Alley.

Common-jack. A prostitute.

Common - plug. An ordinary member of society.

Commonsensual. Marked with common sense.

Common-sewer. A drink, dram; or 'go.' [From common sewer, a drain.]

Communicator. To agitate the communicator, to ring the bell.

Comp. A compositor. [An abbreviated form of companion now peculiar to compositors, but originally applied to pressmen who work in couples, as well as to compositors who work in a companionship, or ship (q.v.).]

Company. To see company, to live by prostitution.

Competition - wallah. One who enters the Indian Civil Service by examination.

Compo. A sailor's monthly advance of wages.

Compy - shop. A truck shop. [Probably a corruption of company-shop: workmen, before the passing of certain Truck Acts (q.v.), having been frequently compelled to make their weekly purchases at shops either kept by, or worked to the profit of, their employer.]

Con (Winchester College). A rap on the head with the knuckles, or anything hard, such as a cricket ball. As verb, to rap with the knuckles. [The derivation formerly accepted at Winchester was from κονδύλον=a knuckle, but the editors of the Wykehamist suggest its origin in the North Country con, 'to fillip,' with which the French se cogner exactly corresponds.]

Concaves and Convexes. Cards prepared for cheating. All from the eight to the king are cut convex, and all from the deuce to the seven, concave; so that by cutting the pack broadwise you cut convex, and by cutting them lengthwise you cut concave. Sometimes they are shaped the reverse way, so that, if suspicion arises, a pack so treated may be substituted for the other to the same effect. In this trick the sharper has less in his favour than in others, because the intended victim may cut in the usual way, and so cut a low card to the dealer. But the certainty of being able to cut or deal a high or low card at pleasure, gives him an advantage against which skill is of none avail. Other modes of sharpening are by means of Reflectors (q.v.); Longs and shorts, (q.v.); Pricked Cards (q.v.); The Bridge (q.v.); Skinning (q.v.); Weaving (q.v.); The Gradus (or Step) (q.v.); Palming (q.v.); and The Telegraph (q.v.).

Concerned. Drunk: see Screwed. (1686).

Concher. A tame or quiet beast.

Condiddle. To purloin or steal (1825).

Condog. To agree with: cf. concur.

Confab. Familiar talk (1778). As verb, to talk in a familiar manner, to chat.

Confectionery. A drinking bar: cf. Grocery, and Lush-crib.

Confidence Trick (Dodge, or Buck). A process of swindling, obtaining trust with the deliberate intention of betraying it to one's own advantage. A greenhorn meets (or rather is picked up by) a stranger who invites him to drink. The stranger admires him openly, protests his confidence in him, and to prove his sincerity hands him over a large sum of money [snide, q.v.] or valuables [bogus, q.v.] with which to walk off and return. The greenhorn does both, whereupon the stranger suggests that it is his turn next, and being favoured with certain proofs of confidence, which in this case are real, decamps, and is no more seen. This is the simplest form of the trick, but the confidence man is inexhaustible in devices. In many cases the subject's idiosyncrasy takes the form of an idiotic desire to overreach his fellows; i.e. he is only a knave, wrong side out, and it is upon this idiosyncrasy that the operator works. He offers a sham gold watch at the price of a nickel one; he calls with presents from nowhere where none are expected; he writes letters announcing huge legacies to persons absolutely kinless; and as his appeal is addressed to the sister passions of greed and dishonesty, he seldom fails of his reward. Fr., mener en bateau un pante pour le faire—to stick a jay and flap him.

Conflabberated. Bothered, upset, flummoxed (q.v.).

Conflabberation. A confused wrangle, a hullabaloo.

Confounded. Excessive, odious, detestable, e.g. a confounded nuisance, lie, humbug, etc.: cf. Awful, Beastly, and other 'strumpets of speech' (1767).

Confubuscate. To confuse, perplex, astonish: cf. Confusticate.

Coniacker. A counterfeiter, smasher, (q.v.), 'queer-bit' faker. [Obviously a play upon coin, money, and hack, to mutilate.] Fr., un mornifleur tarte.

Conish. Genteel (1830).

Conk. The nose. English synonyms: boko (or boco), proboscis, smeller, bowsprit, claret-jug, gig, muzzle, cheese-cutter, beak, snuff-box, snorter, post-horn, paste-horn, handle, snout, nozzle, smelling-cheat, snotter, candlestick, celestial, snottle-box, snuffler, trumpet, snorer, peak.

Conoodle. See Canoodle.

Conscience. A kind of association in a small theatrical company for the allotment of shares in the profits, etc. The man who is lucky enough to have a concern of his own, generally a very small affair, however badly he may act, must be the leading man or first low comedian, perhaps both. He becomes the manager, of course, and thus has one share for 'fit-up,' one for scenery, one and a half for management, one for wardrobe, one and a half as leading man; and the same is given to the wife, who, of course, will not play anything but the juvenile lead, but who at any other time would be glad to play first old woman.

Considerable Bend. To go on the considerable bend, to go in for a bout of dissipation.

Consonant-choker. One that clips his G's and muffles his R's.

Constable. To out- (or over-run) the constable, to live beyond one's means and get into debt; also, in a figurative sense, to escape from a bad argument, to change the subject, to talk about what is not understood (1663).

Constician. A member of an orchestra.

Constitutional. A walk undertaken for the sake of health and exercise [i.e. for the benefit of the constitution]: Fr., trouchniner (1850).

Contango (Stock Exchange). A fine paid by the buyer to the seller of stock for carrying over the engagement to another settling day, and representing a kind of interest for a fourteen days' extension. [Thought to be a corruption of continuation.] (1853.)

Content. Dead: see Hop the twig.

Continent (Winchester College). Ill; on the sick list. [From continens cameram vel lectum, keeping one's room or bed.] See Abroad.

Continental. To care (or be worth) not a continental or continental damn, to be worthless; to care not in the least degree.

Continuations. Trousers: see Kicks. [Of analogous derivation to inexpressibles; unmentionables; mustn't-mention'ems; untalkaboutables, etc.] (1841).

Contraptions. Small articles, tools, and so forth (1838).

Convenience. A water-closet or chamber-pot.

Convenient. A mistress (1676).

Convexes. See Concaves.

Convey. To steal (1596). Hence conveyance, a theft (1592). Conveyancer, a thief: also conveyer. Conveyancing, thieving.

Cony (or Tom Cony). A simpleton.

Conycatch. To cheat, deceive, trick, bite (q.v.) (1593). Hence, cony-catcher, a cheat, sharper, trickster. Cony-catching, cheating, trickery, swindling after the manner of Conycatchers (q.v.).

Coo-e-e-e or Coo-ey. A signal cry of the Australian blackfellow, adopted by the invading whites. The final 'e' is a very high note, a sort of prolonged screech, that resounds for miles through the bush, and thus enables parties that have lost each other to ascertain their relative positions.

Cook. 1. To tamper with, garble, or falsify: accounts are cooked when so altered as to look better than they are; pictures are cooked when dodged-up for sale; painters say that a picture will not cook when it is so excellent as to be beyond imitation (1751). 2. To swelter with heat and sweat. To cook one's goose, to settle, worst, kill, ruin. English synonyms: to anodyne, to put to bed, to snuff out, to give (or cook) one's gruel, to corpse, to cooper up, to wipe out, to spificate, to settle (or settle one's hash), to squash, to shut up, to send to pot, to smash, to finish, to do for, to put one's light out, to stop one's little game, to stop one's galloping, to put on an extinguisher, to clap a stopper on, to bottle up, to squelch, to play hell with, to rot, to squash up, to stash, to give a croaker. For synonyms in the sense of circumvention: see Floored.

Cookeyshine. An afternoon meal at which cookies form a staple dish: cf. Tea-fight, Muffin-worry.

Cook-ruffian. A bad or indifferent cook, one 'who would cook the devil in his feathers.'

Cool. 1. Impertinent, audacious, calmly impudent. 2. (In reference to money; e.g. a cool hundred, thousand, etc.). Commonly expletive; but sometimes used to cover a sum a little above the figure stated (1750). As verb (Eton College). To kick hard. Hence, Cool-kick, when a Behind (q.v.), or back, gets a kick with no one up to him. Cool as a cucumber, without heat; also, metaphorically, calm and composed. To cool one's coppers, to allay the morning's thirst after a night of drink.

Cool-crape. A shroud, or winding sheet (Grose) (1742).

Cooler. 1. A woman (1742).

2. A prison: see Cage. 3. Ale or stout after spirits and water: sometimes called Putting the beggar on the gentleman; also Damper (q.v.) (1821).

Cool-lady. A female camp follower who sells brandy (Grose).

Cool-nantz. Brandy: see Drinks.

Coon. 1. A man. 2. A nigger, e.g. a coons' bawdy house, house where none are kept but girls of colour. Gone coon, one in a serious or hopeless difficulty. To go the whole coon, to go the whole hog.

Coon's-age. A long time, a blue moon.

Coop. A prison: see Cage. Hence, Cooped up, imprisoned.

Cooper (or Cooper up). 1. To destroy, spoil, settle, or finish. 2. To forge. 3. To understand. Hence, Coopered, hoccussed, spoiled, ruined, e.g. a house is said to be coopered when the importunity of many tramps has caused its inmates to cold-shoulder the whole fraternity; a coopered horse is a horse that has been 'got at' with a view to prevent its running.

Coored. Whipped (D. Haggart, Life, Glossary, p. 171 [1821].)

Coot. A stupid fellow; generally a silly, or mad, old coot: stupid as a coot is a common English provincialism: see Buffle.

Cooter. See Couter.

Cop. A policeman. As verb. 1. To seize, steal, catch, take an unfair advantage in a bet or bargain. [Cop has been associated with the root of the Latin cap-io, to seize, to snatch; also with the Gipsy kap or cop=to take; Scotch kep; and Gallic ceapan. Probably, however, its true radix is to be found in the Hebrew cop=a hand or palm. Low-class Jews employ the term, and understand it to refer to the act of snatching.] Cop like Chuck (q.v.), is a sort of general utility verb: thus to cop the needle, to get angry; to cop the bullet (or the door), to get the sack; and to cop the brewer, to be drunk. 2. To arrest, imprison, betray, ensnare. English synonyms: to give the clinch, to make one kiss the clink, to accommodate, to noble, to bag, to box, to fist (old), to scoop, to take up, to victimize, to run in, to give (or get) one the boat, to buckle, to smug, to nab, to collar, to pinch, to nail, to rope in, to snake, to pull up.

Cobusy. To hand over booty to a confederate.

Copper. A policeman.

Copperheads. A nickname applied to different sections of the American nation; first to the Indian; then to the Dutch colonist (see Irving, Knickerbocker); lastly, during the Civil War, to certain Northern Democrats who sympathised with the South.

Copperman. A policeman.

Copper-nose. A swollen, pimply nose, a jolly or bottle nose; Fr., bette-rave, piton passé à l'encaustique; cf. Grogblossom (1822).

Copper's-nark. A police spy, one in the pay of the police.

Copus. A wine or beer cup: commonly imposed as a fine upon those who talked Latin in hall or committed other breaches of etiquette. Dr. Johnson derives it from episcopus, and if this be correct it is doubtless the same as bishop.

Crow's-foot. The Government broad arrow; also (in pl.) wrinkles at the outside corners of the eyes.

Cruel (or Cruelly). Extremely, very, great (1662).

Cruelty-van (or Booby-hutch). A four-wheeled chaise.

Crug (Christ's Hospital). 1. At Hertford, a crust; in the London school, crust and crumb alike (1820). Hence, 2. a Blue (q.v.): especially an old boy.

Cruganaler (Christ's Hospital). A biscuit given on St. Matthew's Day. [Orthography dubious. Blanch inclines to the following derivation: 'The biscuit had once something to do with those nights when bread and beer, with cheese, were substituted for bread-and-butter and milk. Thence the term "crug and aler." The only argument against this is the fact that the liquid was never dignified with the name of ale, but was invariably called "the swipes." By another derivation—"hard as nails." It is then spelt Cruggy-nailer.']

Cruggy (Christ's Hospital). Hungry.

Cruisers. 1. Beggars, or highway spies: those who traversed the road (Grose) to give intelligence of a booty; also, rogues ready to snap up any booty that may offer. 2. In sing., a street-walker.

Crumb. A pretty woman: cf. Crummy.

Crumb-and-crust Man. A baker: cf. Burn-crust and Master of the rolls: Fr., marchand de lartion.

Crummy. 1. Fat, plump, well-developed: especially said of high-bosomed and full-figured women: e.g. a crummy piece of goods. Fr., fort en mie (an almost literal translation) (1748). 2. (American), comely. 3. Lousy. Hence, Crummy-doss, a lousy bed. 4. (thieves'). Plump in the pockets.

Crump (Winchester College). A hard hit, a fall: as a verb, to cob (q.v.).

Crumpet. The head. English synonyms: brain-pan, nut, chump, jazey, steeple, tib or tibby, weather-cock, turnip, upper extremity, top end, twopenny, upper storey, canister, attic, garret, costard, sponce, bonce, nob, lolly, lobb, knowledge-box, block, cocoa-nut, Crown-Office, calabash, top-knot, crust, chimney-pot, onion, chevy, cockloft, top-flat, gable, pumpkin, hat-peg, billiard ball, upper-crust, mazzard, cabaza, dome. Balmy in one's crumpet: see Balmy.

Crumpet-face. A pock-pitted face, a cribbage-face (q.v.).

Crusher. 1. A policeman: cf. Crush! once a favourite signal of the pea, thimble, and other race-course sharps warning of the approach of the police. 2. Anything large, fine, or extraordinary: cf. Whopper, Stinger, Corker, Bouncer, etc. (q.v.).

Crushing. Excellent, first-rate.

Crust (or Upper Crust). The head: see Crumpet. Upper-crust (q.v.).

Crusty-beau. One that uses paint and cosmetics to obtain a fine complexion (Grose).

Cry. A large number, a quantity. [From cry, a pack of dogs.] Great cry and little wool, much ado about nothing. The original text of the proverb was, Great cry and little wool, as the devil said when he sheared the hogs. Hudibras alters it into All cry and no wool. To cry carrots and turnips, a term which rogues use for whipping at the cart's arse (Johnson, 1747). To cry (or call) a go, to give in, as one unable to proceed. An expression borrowed from cribbage signifying that the player who makes use of it has nothing playable in his hand, and is compelled to cry a go. To cry cupboard, to be famished, hungry, banded (q.v.): Fr., rien dans le cornet, le buffet vide, and danser devant le buffet. Cry matches! an exclamation of surprise. [Various derived: (1) a corruption of 'Crime hatches'; (2) cry = XPI or Christ, no suggestion being offered to account for 'matches'; and (3) a conversion of the Fr. cré matin, presumably Canadian: cf. Crimini.] To cry off, to retreat, back out from an engagement. See Stinking fish.

C.T.A. (Circus and showmen's). The police.

Cub (or Unlicked-cub). An awkward, sulky girl; a mannerless, uncouth lout of a boy. [In allusion to the supposed shapelessness of bear cubs till their dam has 'licked them into shape.']

Currants - and - plums. A three-penny bit, thrums (q.v.).

Currency. A colonist born in Australia, those of English birth being sterling (q.v.).

Curse. Not to care (or be worth) a curse, to care (or be worth) little—or nothing at all (1362).

Curse-of-God. A cockade (Lexicon Balatronicum).

Curse of Scotland. The nine of diamonds. The suggested derivations are inconclusive. [The locution has nothing to do with Culloeden and the Duke of Cumberland, for the card was nicknamed the Justice-Clerk, in allusion to the Lord Justice-Clerk Ormiston, who, for his severity in suppressing the Rebellion of 1715, was called the Curse of Scotland. Other suggestions are: (1) That it is derived from the game of Pope Joan, the nine of diamonds there being called the 'pope,' of which the Scotch have always stood in horror. (2) The word 'curse' is a corruption of cross, and the nine of diamonds is so arranged as to form a St. Andrew's Cross. (3) That it refers to the arms of Dalrymple, Earl of Stair (viz. or, on saltire azure, nine lozenges of the field), who was held in abhorrence for the massacre of Glencoe; or to Colonel Packer, who attended Charles I. on the scaffold, and had for his arms nine lozenges conjoined, or in the heraldic language, gules, a cross of lozenges.

These conflicting views were discussed at length in Notes and Queries, 1 S., i. 61, 90; iii. 22, 253, 423, 483; v. 619; 3 S., xii. 24, 96; 4 S., vi. 194, 289; also, see Chambers' Encyclopædia.] Cursitor (or Cursetor). A tramp or vagabond.

Curtain-raiser. A short 'piece' to bring up the curtain: Fr., lever de rideau.

Curtall (or Curtail). A vagabond or thief: 'A curtall is much like to the Vpright man, but hys authority is not fully so great. He vseth commonly to go with a short cloke, like to grey Friars, and his woman with him in like liuery, which he calleth his altham if she be hys' (Awdley, 1560). 'Thieves who cut off pieces of stuff hanging out of shop windows; the tails of women's gowns, etc.; also thieves wearing short jackets' (Grose, 1785). As verb, to cut off.

Cuse (Winchester College). A book in which a record is kept of the 'marks' in each division: its name to dons is 'classicus paper'; also used for the weekly order.

Cushion. To hide, conceal, Stall off (q.v.), Stow (q.v.), Slum (q.v.). To deserve the cushion, on the birth of a child a man was said to deserve the cushion; i.e. the symbol of rest from labour.

Cushion-smiter (or -thumper). A clergyman.

Cuss. A man, Cove (q.v.), or Cull (q.v.): generally, but not necessarily, disparaging. To cuss out, to talk down, flummox by the lip (q.v.).

Cussedness. Generally in such phrases as, pure cussedness, the cussedness of things, etc. Mischievousness, or resolution, or courage may be implied; but in the Coventry plays cursydnesse signified sheer wickedness and malignity.

Customer. A man, fellow, cove, cuss, or chap: with a certain qualification, e.g. an ugly customer = a dangerous opponent; a queer customer = a suspicious person, one to be suspected; a rum customer = an odd fish.

Thus, to cut lecture, to cut chapel, to cut hall, to cut gates (1794) are common phrases. To cut a caper or capers, to play a trick or prank, behave boisterously or fantastically (1692). To cut a dash, splash (or shine), to make a show, attract attention through some idiosyncrasy of manner, appearance, or conduct. In the United States to cut a splurge (or a swathe), Fr., flamber, faire du flafla, and faire flouer (1771). To cut a figure, to make an appearance, good or bad (1759). To cut and come again, to have plenty: i.e. if one cut does not suffice, plenty remains to come at again (1738). To cut (or cut up) didoes (shindies, shines, etc.), to play pranks or tricks, to cut capers. To cut dirt (or cut one's stick, lucky), to make off, escape. To cut fine, to narrow down to a minimum. To cut in, to join in suddenly and without ceremony, intrude, chip in (q.v.). Also substantively (1819). To cut into (Winchester College), originally to hit one with a 'ground ash.' The office was exercised by Bible-clerks upon a 'man' kicking up a row when 'up to books.' Now generally used in the sense of to correct in a less formal manner than Tunding (q.v.). To cut it, to move off quickly, run away, cut dirt (q.v.). As intj., Cease! Stow it! Stash it! A forcible injunction to desist and be off. Also cut that! or simply cut! To cut it fat, to show off, make a display, come it strong, put on side, cut a dash (q.v.). Dandy (formerly slang, now recognized). 1. A fop, coxcomb, man who pays excessive attention to dress. The feminine forms, 'dandilly' and 'dandizette,' did not catch on. Dandy was first applied half in admiration, half in derision to a fop about the year 1816. John Bee (Slang Dict., 1823) says that Lord Petersham was the chief of these successors to the departed Macaronis, and gives, as their peculiarities, 'French gait, lispings, wrinkled foreheads, killing king's English, wearing immense plaited pantaloons, coat cut away, small waistcoat, cravat and chitterlings immense, hat small, hair frizzled and protruding.' In common English dandy has come to be applied to such as are neat and careful in dressing according to fashion. English synonyms: beau, blade, blood, buck, chappie, corinthian, count, court-card, cheese, daffy-down-dilly, dancing-master, dude, dundreary, exquisite, flasher, fop, gallant, gommy, gorger, Jemmy Jessamy, Johnny, lounge, macaroni, masher, mohawk, nerve, nicker, nizzie, nob, oatmeal, scourer, smart, spark, sweater, swell, toff, tip-topper, tumbler, yum-yum. 2. Devil's-dust. 1. Old cloth shredded for re-manufacture. [In twofold allusion to the swindle and to the 'dust' or 'flock' produced by the disintegrating machine called a 'devil.' The practice and the name are old. Latimer, in one of his sermons before Edward the Sixth, treating of trade rascality, remarked that manufacturers could stretch cloth seventeen yards long, into a length of seven-and-twenty yards: 'When they have brought him to that perfection,' he continues, 'they have a pretty feat to thicken him again. He makes me a powder for it, and plays the pothericary. They call it flock-powder, they do so incorporate it to the cloth, that it is wonderful to consider; truly a good invention. Oh that so goodly wits should be so applied; they may well deceive the people, but they cannot deceive God. They were wont to make beds of flocks, and it was a good bed too. Now they have turned their flocks into powder, to play the false thieves with it.' Popularised by Mr. Ferrand in a speech before the House of Commons, March 4, 1842 (Hansard, 3 S., lxi. p. 140), when he tore a piece of cloth made from devil's dust, into shreds to prove its worthlessness.] Also Shoddy (q.v.) Grass-widow. 1. An unmarried mother, a deserted mistress (1696). 2. A married woman temporarily separated from her husband. [The usually accepted derivation that grass is Fr., grâce, is doubtful. Hall (says J. C. Atkinson, in Glossary of Cleveland Words) gives as the definition of this word, An unmarried woman who has had a child; in Moor's Suffolk Words and Phrases, Grace-widow, A woman who has had a child for her cradle ere she has had a husband for her bed; and corresponding with this is the N. S. or Low Ger., gras-wedewe. Again, Sw. D., gras-anka, or -enka grass-widow, occurs in the same sense as with us: A low, dissolute, unmarried woman living by herself. The original meaning of the word seems to have been A woman whose husband is away, either travelling or living apart. The people of Belgium call a woman of this description haeck-wedewe, from haecken, to feel strong desire. . . . It seems probable, therefore, from the etymology, taken in connection with the Clevel. signification, that our word may rather be from the Scand. source than from the German; only with a translation of the word enka into its English equivalent. Dan. D., græs-enka, is a female whose betrothed lover (fastman) is dead; nearly equivalent to which is German, strohwitwe, literally straw-widow. See N. and Q., 6 S viii., 268, 414: x. 333, 436, 526; xi. 78, 178.] English synonyms: Californian widow, widow-bewitched, wife in water colours (1700).

Long-ear. 1. A reading man; a sober student: see Short-ear. 2. In pl., a donkey, moke.

Long Eliza. The trade term for certain blue and white vases ornamented with figures of tall thin china-women, is a name derived undoubtedly from the German or Dutch. Our sailors and traders called certain Chinese vases, from the figures which distinguished them, lange Lischen (tall Lizzies), and the English sailors and traders promptly translated this into long Elizas.

Long-faced One. A horse: see Prad.

Long-feathers. Straw, strommel (q.v.): Fr., plume de Beauce.

Long-firm. A body of phantom capitalists who issue large orders to supply an infinite variety of goods—from herrings to harmoniums, from cotton-twist to pictures; the ledger of the long firm has room for the most multifarious transactions. The rule of procedure with the long firm is simple: a noble order, a moderate sum paid on account, bills for the remainder, an order to deliver the goods at some country warehouse or depository—and exit. In the next town he changes his name and his partners, and repeats the operation. From Liverpool and Manchester he flings the bait to London tradesmen, and now and then a fish is hooked. Fr., bande noire. A somewhat similar mode of swindling is described in Parker's View of Society (ii. 33, 1781).

Long-fork (Winchester College). A piece of stick serving as a toasting fork.

Long-gallery. Throwing, or rather trundling, the dice the whole length of the board.

Long-ghost. A gawk: see Lamp-post.

Long-glass (Eton College). A glass nearly a yard long, shaped like the horn of a stage-coach guard, and with a hollow globe instead of a foot. It held a quart of beer, and the ceremony of drinking out of it constituted an initiation into the higher circles of Etonian swelldom. There was long-glass drinking once or twice a week during the summer half. The invités attended in an upper room of Tap after two, and each, before the long glass was handed to him, had a napkin tied round his neck. It was considered a grand thing to drain the glass without removing it from the lips, and without spilling any of its contents. This was difficult, because when the contents of the tubular portion of the glass had been sucked down, the beer in the globe would remain for a moment as if congealed there: then if the drinker tilted the glass up a little, and shook it, the motionless beer would give a gurgle and come with a sudden rush all over his face. There was a way of holding the long glass at a certain angle by which catastrophes were avoided. Some boys could toss off their quart of ale in quite superior style, and I may as well remark that these clever fellows could do little else (Brinsley Richards).

Long-haired Chum. A female friend, sweetheart.

Barabbas, Ghost, Jackal, etc. (1703). 2. In 1829 George Shillibeer introduced omnibuses into London, and . . . took care to impress upon every man he employed the importance of politeness towards all passengers. But in 1832 it was noticed that this high standard . . . was not maintained by . . . conductors of the new 'buses running from Paddington to the Bank via Oxford Street. They overcharged passengers, and met protests with abuse. Frequently, when females only were in the 'bus, they brought their journey to an end long before they reached their advertised destination, compelling the passengers to walk a considerable distance after paying their fares. . . . These were the first pirate omnibuses. To let the public know which really were his vehicles Shillibeer at once had painted on them Shillibeer's Original Omnibus. In a few days the same inscription appeared on some of the pirates with the word not in very small letters preceding it. Now (1902), thanks to police regulations and the imposition of heavy penalties, almost a thing of the past: chiefly applied, without depreciation, to any non-Company or Association vehicle.

Russell*: a favourite expression of Lord Nelson when referring to American skippers) (1531).

Sweat. 1. To work hard, to drudge, to put in licks (q.v.); also to sweat one's guts out: cf. modern (public school) swat (or swot), fagging, hard study, especially mathematics, whence swot also, a mathematician; and as verb, to fag, or study hard: this word (swot) originated at the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, in the broad Scotch pronunciation of Dr. Wallace, one of the Professors, of the word sweat (Hotten). 2. To suffer, to pay the penalty: also to beat, to pay out (1610). 3. A street bully; it was their practice to cut off a small portion of the scabbards of the swords which every one then wore, and prick, or pink, the persons with whom they quarrelled with the naked points, which were sufficiently protruded to inflict considerable pain, but not sufficient to cause death. Sweating, a diversion practised by the bloods of the last century, who styled themselves Mohocks: these gentlemen lay in wait to surprise some person late in the night, when surrounding him, they with their swords pricked him in the posteriors, which obliged him to be constantly turning round: this they continued till they thought him sufficiently sweated (Grose). 4. To extort, lose, or squander money freely, to fleece (q.v.), to bleed (q.v.); to sweat one's purse, to cause one to spend everything (1784). 5. To work for (or employ labour at) starvation wages; to submit to extortion (or to extort); hence sweater, an employer of underpaid labour: usually a middleman between the actual employer and employed; a grinding taskmaster; whence sweating-system, sweater, sweated, etc. (1850). 6. To pawn (1811). Phrases: In a sweat, (1) in a hurry, and (2) in a state of terror, impatient; to sweat coins, to remove part of the metal from coins (chiefly gold) by friction or acids, yet in such a manner that the depreciation is imperceptible (1785).

Sweat-box. The cell used for prisoners while awaiting appearance before a magistrate.

Sweater (Winchester). 1. A servant; hence sweat-gallery, fagging juniors. 2. A thick coat (or flannel jersey) worn by contestants after a finish until they can be rubbed down. 3 (Stock Exchange). A broker who works for such small commissions as to prevent other brokers getting the business, whilst hardly being profitable to himself. 4. See Sweat.

Sweat-pits. The arm-pits (1709).

Sweep. 1. A sweepstakes. 2. A term of contempt: e.g. What a sweep the man is. You dirty sweep. To sweep the board, to take everything, to pocket all the stakes; to make a clean sweep, to clean out (q.v.), to remove entirely; also sweep, at whisk, taking all the tricks in the hand, a slam (q.v.) (1680). The sweeps, the Rifle Brigade. Their facings from formation (1800) have been black.]

Sweep's-frill. Beard and whiskers worn round the chin, the rest of the face being clean shaven.

Sweet. 1. Gullible, easily deceived. 2. Expert, dexterous, clever: e.g. Sweet's your hand (said of a clever thief). Hence to sweeten a victim, to allay his suspicions (Grose), to decoy, draw in, and bite (B. E.): see Sweetener.

Sweetbread. A bribe, a tip (q.v.) (1692).

Sweeten. A beggar. Also as verb, (1) to give alms (Grose); (2) to contribute to the pool; hence sweetening, money paid into the pool or kitty. To sweeten and pinch, a main part of his [a bum-bailiff's] office is to swear and bluster . . . and cry Confound us, why do we wait? let us shop him; whilst the other meekly replies, Jack, be patient, it is a civil gentleman, and I know will consider us; which species of wheedling, in terms of their art, is called sweeten and pinch (Harl. Misc.).

Sweetener. 1. A guinea-dropper (q.v.): a coin is planted (q.v.), and a likely passer-by is offered a share because present at the discovery; to get change, drinks are suggested, and the victim goes out fleeced (1699). 2. A runner-up (q.v.) of prices; a bonnet (q.v.). 3. In pl., the lips; to fake the sweeteners, to kiss. 4. One who decoys persons to game (Bailey); also sweeten, to decoy, to draw in.

Swell. 1. A gentleman; but any well-dressed person is emphatically termed a swell, or a rank swell. A family man who appears to have plenty of money, and makes a genteel figure, is said by his associates to be in Swell Street. Anything remarkable for its beauty or elegance, is called a swell article; so a swell crib is a genteel house; a swell mollisher, an elegantly dressed woman, etc. Sometimes in alluding to a particular gentleman, whose name is not requisite, he is styled, the swell, meaning the person who is the object of your discourse or attention; and whether he is called the swell, the cove, or the gory, is immaterial, as in the following (in addition to many other) examples: I was turned up at China-street, because the swell would not appear; meaning, of course, the prosecutor; again, speaking of a person whom you were on the point of robbing, but who has taken the alarm, and is therefore on his guard, you will say to your pal, It's of no use, the cove is as down as a hammer; or, We may as well stow it, the gory's leary (Grose). 2. It is very hard to define exactly what is meant by a swell at Eton; but it usually implies a boy who, brought into notice either by athletic prowess or scholarship, or high standing in the school, by this means becomes acquainted with the leading members of the school, and is found on acquaintance to develop considerable social qualities, which make him hand and glove with all the Eton magnates (Oliphant). Hence, as adj. (also swellish), (1) elegant, stylish, dandified and (2) first-rate, tip-top (q.v.). Also derivatives and combinations such as swell-dom, the world of fashion; to live in Swell-street, to reside in the West End; a swell hung in chains, a bejewelled man or woman; a howling swell (see Howling); swell-head (or block), a vain coxcomb (Amer.). 3. A sheriff's officer, thief-taker, policeman, or detective (1705). 3. A carriage; a fast name for a conveyance of any kind (Hotten). [S da: The old-fashioned gig had, under the seat, a sort of boot extending a few inches beyond the back of the seat. At the beginning of the century gigs were raised upon higher wheels than at present. On this raised vehicle the boot was lengthened behind, holding a brace of dogs for sporting purposes. In these dog-carts (thus named afterwards) the dogs were at first placed in the boot at the front, and I dare say that the noble sportsmen may occasionally have had their heels or their calves bitten by dogs with short tempers, and with scant liking for the confinement of the boot. This led to a great improvement, in the shape of an open latticed box which was attached to the back of the body of the conveyance, and provided with a trap-door behind for the admission of the dogs. In process of time the latticed box was found very convenient for the carriage of other things besides dogs, and as everything conveyed in the cart (chattels, not people) had to be put in through the trap-door (soon curtailed into trap: compare 'bus for omnibus, cab for cabriolet), the conveyance itself was eventually termed trap.] Hence trapper, a horse used in a trap: cf. Vanner, Busser, Cabber, etc., on the model of hunter (1854). 4. Belongings, things (q.v.), sticks and stones (q.v.): usually in a measure of contempt, cf. Rattletrap (1835), 5. Swag (q.v.).

Tripos (Cambridge Univ.) Orig. the stool on which the champion of the University sat at the disputations held with the Father in the Philosophy School on Ash Wednesday, at the admission of Bachelors of Arts to their degree; then it was transferred to the Bachelor himself; still later to the humorous, or, in some cases, scurrilous, speech with which Mr Tripos opened the proceedings, and to the verses of the Bachelors at the Acts, each sheet of verses being called a tripos or tripos-paper. The honours-lists were printed (about 1747-48) on the backs of these verses, and so tripos came to mean an honour-list, and, last of all, the examination itself. Until the year 1824 there was only one tripos, the Mathematical; and up to 1850 only those who had obtained honours in mathematics were admitted to the Classical examination. The degree was not given for that examination till a few years later. There are now nine triposes . . . founded in the following order: Mathematical, Classical, Moral Sciences, Natural Sciences, Theological, Law, History, Semitic and Indian Languages, with a Mediæval and Modern Languages tripos from 1885.

W a l l (Eton). Two football games are played at Eton—one at the wall, the other in the field. The first is only played by a very limited number of boys, for there is but one wall; the game is of an intricate nature, and the uninitiated spectator cannot, as a rule, even see how a point, called a Shy, is obtained. Indeed, were it not for the time-honoured match between Collegers and Oppidans on St. Andrew's Day the game would probably become obsolete. The Eton field game has many merits as a game for boys superior to those of any other kind of football. In its speed, and skilful dribbling, and accurate kicking have their due success, but strength and dogged perseverance are not left out in the cold (Great Public Schools). As verb, to confine to College bounds: cf. Gate. Go-by-the-wall, strong ale. Phrases: At (or to) the wall, in difficulties: to go to the wall, to be slighted, ousted, put on one side, to succumb to force of circumstances, to go under (q.v.); laid by the wall, dead, but unburied; to drive to the wall, to force to give way, to crush; to take the wall, to walk nearest the wall in passing; hence to get the better of (or the advantage): cf. to get to windward (q.v.): the wall (the right of choice of way), was in olden times the safest and cleanest; to hang by the wall, to be neglected, remain disused; to see as far into a brick wall (millstone or milestone) as . . . to be as able (or as cute) as . . . ; Look on the wall, and it will not bite you (a jeer to one whose tongue has been bitten by mustard); Walls have ears, Be careful, some one may be listening (1530).

Wallaby. On the wallaby (or wallaby-track), tramping the country on foot looking for work. [Morris: Wallaby, a small kangaroo; often in the bush the only perceptible tracks, and sometimes the only tracks by which the scrub can be penetrated, are the tracks worn down by the wallaby, as a hare tramples its form. These tracks may lead to water or they may be aimless and rambling. Thus the man on the wallaby, may be looking for food or for work, or aimlessly wandering by day and getting food and shelter as a sundowner (q.v.) at night.]

Wattle. In pl., ears; also Sheep-folds (B. E.).

Wave. To wave a flag of defiance, to be drunk: see Screwed. To number the waves, to do the unneedful, act foolishly (1670).

Wavy. Wavy in the syls, imperfect in one's lines.

Wavy-rule. To make wavy rule, to be staggering drunk. [~~~~~]

Wax. A rage, a passion, a tear (q.v.); also waxiness, vexation, and waxy, angry: cf. Lowland Scotch wex, vex (1490). As verb, to overcome, surmount a difficulty, get the better of: by stratagem or nous (q.v.). A lad (or man) of wax, a smart lad, a clever man (1595). Close as wax, as miserly, niggardly, or secretive as may be. Neat as wax: see Neat.

Waxed. Well-known: e.g. So-and-so has been well waxed, i.e. We know all about him.

Way. Health, condition, state, calling; e.g. in a bad way, shaky in health, pocket, or manner; only his way, characteristic: cf. pretty Fanny's way. Also in phrases: To look both (or nine) ways for Sundays, to squint; There are no two ways about it, the fact is as stated, there's no mistake; out of the way, a thief who knows that he is sought after by the traps on some information and consequently goes out of town, or otherwise conceals himself, is said by his pals to be out of the way for so and so, naming the particular offence he stands charged with; to note the way the cat jumps, to watch the course of events; to go the way of nature (or all flesh), (1) to be fond of belly cheer, and (2) to die: see Hop the twig; to know one's way about, to be well informed, experienced: see Know; way to St. James' (or Walsingham way), the Milky Way (1670); the longest way round is the shortest way there, a warning to the unwary or ignorant that short cuts are proverbial pitfalls: cf. Better go about than fall into the ditch.

Way-bit (Weabit, or Webit). A considerable though indefinite addition to a mile; a bittock (q.v.) (1611).

Way-goose. An entertainment given by an apprentice to his fellow-workmen: spec. (printers') an annual dinner; cf. beanfeast (q.v.). [A corruption of wayz-goose, stubble goose, a favourite dish at such festivals: nowadays, among printers, the funds are collected by stewards appointed by the chapel (q.v.)] (1677).

Weak-brother (or sister). An unreliable man (or woman). Cf. also (colloquial) weakling (a diminutive), which, as adj., puny, weak; weak-kneed, uncertain, vacillating, purposeless (1595).

Weaker-sex. Womankind: also (in singular) the weaker vessel [See 1 Peter iii. 7] (1600).

Weanie. See Weenie.

Wear. To wear it upon a person (meaning to wear a nose or a conk) is synonymous with nosing, conking, splitting, or coming it, and is merely one of those fanciful variations so much admired by flash people (Grose). Phrases: To wear the heart upon the sleeve (see Sleeve); to wear the breeches (see Breeches); to wear the willow (see Willow); to wear yellow stockings or hose (see Yellow); to wear the collar, to be subject to control, or under the direction of another (chiefly political); to wear the bands (see Band). to wear ill (or well), to look older (or younger) than one's years. Also proverbial, Let every cuckold wear his own horns; to wear Pannier-alley on one's back (see Pannier-man).

Weary. Drunk: see Screwed.

Weasel. A mean, greedy, or sneaking fellow. Also as adj. (1599). See Whistle.

Weather. Phrases: To make fair weather, to flatter, coax, conciliate, make the best of things; to keep the weather eye open, to be on one's guard, alert, watchful: see Keep one's eyes skinned; under the weather, seedy, ill, indisposed; the clerk of the weather, the imaginary controller of temperature, rainfall, etc.

Weather-breeder. A hot day which often precedes and prepares a storm.

Weathercock. A fickle, inconstant vacillating person (1596).

Weatherdog. A rainbow, fragmentary and only partly visible: regarded as a presage instead of a concomitant of rain.

Weathergage. Advantage, the upper hand: cf. Windward. Whence to get the weathergage, to command, control, have the best of (1813).

Weather-headed. See Wether-headed.

Weather-scupper. It is an old joke at sea to advise a greenhorn to get a handspike and hold it down hard in the weather-scuppers to steady the ship's wild motions (Clark Russell).

Weather-spy. A weather-prophet: spec. an astrologer (1631).

Weave. 1. When a knowing blade is asked what he has been doing lately, and does not choose to tell, he replies, Weaving leather aprons (Hotten): from the reports of a celebrated trial for gold robbery on the South-Western Railway; similar replies are, Making a trundle for a goose's eye, or a whim-wham to bridle a goose; sometimes a man will describe himself as a doll's-eye weaver. As verb, to roll the neck and body from side to side: of horses; also (American), to walk unsteadily, to make snakes (q.v.): as a shuttle in a loom: spec. of drunken men: usually with along, about, etc.

Weaving. A card-sharper's trick: cards are kept on the knee, or between the knee and the under side of the table, and used when required by changing them for cards held in the hand (Hotten).

Web-root State. Oregon.

Wedding. Cesspool emptying: because always done in the night (Grose).

Wedge. 1. Generic for money: spec. silver, money or plate: see Rhino (1785); hence wedge-feeder, a silver-spoon; wedge-lobb, a silver snuff-box; wedge-yack, a silver watch; wedge-hunter, a thief, spec. one devoting attention to silver plate, watches, etc.; to flash the wedge, to fence (q.v.) the swag (q.v.) (1832). 2. (Cambridge University). The last in the classical tripos (q.v.) list: also wooden wedge: in 1824, on the publication of the first list, the position was occupied by a T. H. Wedgewood. To knock out the wedges, to desert, leave in the lurch (q.v.), abandon one in a difficulty. The thin (or small) end of the wedge, a first move (or a beginning), seemingly trivial, but calculated to lead to important results, a finger in the pie, a manoeuvre, shift, artifice.

Wedlock. A wife (1601).

Wee. Small, little, tiny: also weeny (which also see) (1596).

Weed. 1. A cigar, a Newtown pippin (q.v.): also the weed, tobacco: cf. Cabbage (1844). 2. Generic for sorryness or worthlessness: spec. a horse, unfit for stock, a screw (q.v.): i.e. (racing) an animal lacking the points of a thorough-bred; whence weedy, adj., worthless, unfit for stock purposes (1859). 3. In pl., generic for clothes: spec. an outer garment: now only in phrase widow's weeds, mourning; whence weedy, clad in mourning garments (1320). As verb, To pilfer or purloin a small portion from a large quantity of anything; often done by young or timid depredators, in the hope of escaping detection, as, an apprentice or shopman will weed his master's lob, that is, take small sums out of the till when opportunity offers, which sort of speculation may be carried on with impunity for a length of time; but experienced thieves sometimes think it good judgment to weed a place, in order that it may be good again, perhaps for a considerable length of time, as in the instance of a warehouse, or other depot, for goods, to which they may possess the means of access by means of a false key: in this case, by taking too great a swag at first, the proprietors would discover the deficiency, and take measures to prevent future depredation. To weed the swag, is to embezzle part of the booty, unknown to your pals, before a division takes place, a temptation against which very few of the family are proof, if they can find an opportunity. A flash-cove, on discovering a deficiency in his purse or property, which he cannot account for, will declare that he (or it, naming the article) has been wedded to the ruffian (Grose). Hence wedding-dues: in speaking of any person, place, or property that has been weeded, it is said wedding dues have been concerned.

Wee-jee. 1. A chimney-pot. Hence, 2. a hat: see Golgotha. 3. Anything superlatively good of its kind: spec. a clever invention: e.g. That's a regular wee-jee.

Week. Phrases, etc.: A week of Sundays, an indefinite time: spec. seven Sundays, hence seven weeks: also month of Sundays; the inside of a week, from Monday till Saturday; a parson's week, from Saturday to Monday; to knock one into the middle of next week, to punish severely, knock out of time, do for (q.v.); an attack of the week's (or month's) end, impecuniosity, hard-uppishness; when two Sundays come in a week, never: a left-handed assent (1800).

Weekender. A week-end holiday.

Weenie. A warning that an inspector is coming.

Weeper. A conventional badge of mourning: e.g. a white border of linen or muslin worn at the end of a sleeve, a long crape hatband as worn by men at a funeral, or the long veil of widow's-weeds (q.v.) (1759). To weep Irish, to lament prodigally, to wail: spec. without sincerity, to shed crocodile's tears (1650).

Weeping - cross. To return by Weeping-cross, (1) to fail, suffer defeat, meet with repulse; hence (2) to repent, to lament: cf. Lothbury. [Nares: Of the three places now retaining the name, one is between Oxford and Banbury; another very near Stafford, where the road turns off to Walsall; the third being Shrewsbury: these crosses being, doubtless, places where penitents particularly offered their devotions] (1580).

Wegotism. The incessant use of we in journalism: cf. Weism.

Weight. 1. The end of one's tether: it is often customary with the traps (q.v.) to wink at depredations of a petty nature, and for which no reward would attach, and to let a thief go unmolested till he commits a capital crime; they then grab him and share a reward of £40, or upwards: therefore those gentry will say, Let him alone . . . till he weighs his weight (Grose). 2. Lust, wantonness, heat (q.v.) (1772).

Weird Sisters. (The). The Fates: also Three Weird Sisters (1512).

Weism. The excessive use of we in journalism: cf. Wegotism.

Well. An elliptical use of well is peculiar to American speech, especially at the beginning of sentences, as a mere expletive or in answer to questions. [Lowell, 'Biglow Papers,' Int.: Put before such a phrase as How d'e do? it is commonly short, and has the sound of wul; but, in reply, it is deliberative, and the various shades of meaning which can be conveyed by difference of intonation, and by prolonging or abbreviating, I should vainly attempt to describe. I have heard ooa-ahl, wahl, ahl, wül, and something nearly approaching the sound of le in able. Sometimes before I it dwindles to a mere l; as, 'l, I dunno.' A friend told me that he once heard five wells, like pioneers, precede the answer to an inquiry about the price of land. The first was the ordinary wul, in deference to custom; the second, the long, perpending ooahl, with a falling inflection of the voice; the third, the same, but with the voice rising, as if in despair of a conclusion, into a plaintive, nasal whine; the fourth, wulh, ending in the aspirate of a sigh; and then, fifth, came a short, sharp wal, showing that a conclusion had been reached.] To dig a well at a river, to act the fool, do the unnecessary (Ray). To put one in a well (in the garden, or in a hole), (1) to defraud an accomplice of his share of booty: also to well one (1785); (2) to inconvenience, nonplus, or get the better of.

Well-in. Well-off, well-to-do, wealthy.

Wellington. In pl., (1) long-legged boots largely worn in the early part of the last century: they came well up the leg, high enough in front to cover the knee and to the bend of the knee behind. Also (2) shorter boots of similar pattern covering the calf of the leg, and worn (usually) under the trousers: cf. Blucher, Albert, Gladstone, etc. [A favourite campaigning foot-gear of the Duke of Wellington.]

Welsh-fiddle. The itch (B. E.): cf. Scotch-fiddle.

Welshman's-hose. To turn a thing to a Welshman's-hose, to suit to one's purpose (1529).

Welsh-rabbit. A dish of toasted cheese. [Smyth-Palmer: One of a numerous class of slang expressions—the mock-heroic of the eating-house—in which some common dish or product for which any place or people has a special reputation is called by the name of some more dainty article of food which it is supposed humorously to supersede or equal.] Cf. German-duck, Cobbler's-lobster, Norfolk-capon, Billingsgate-pheasant, and many others (Grose) (1772).

Welsh-wig. A worsted cap.

Welsh-parsley. Hemp: hence a hangman's rope.

Welt. To beat severely. Hence wetter, a stinging blow; and welting, a sound thrashing.

Wench. Orig. a child of either sex; subsequently a young woman without any idea of bold familiarity or wantonness long afterwards and still frequently associated with the term. Wench, a wanton, mistress, or harlot early came into vogue: nowadays a working girl or woman of humble station in life is usually implied, while in America the word (save in vulgar use) is confined to coloured women, especially those in service (1280).

West-central. A water-closet: i.e. W.C.

Westminster-wedding. A whore and a rogue married together (B. E.).

Westphalia. The backside, the bum (q.v.): an allusion to Westphalia hams.

Westy-head. Dizzy, giddy (Hall, 'Satires').

Wet. Generic for drink, booze (q.v.): spec. drink demanded or expected of any one wearing new clothes (Grose). Whence to wet a coat (bargain, deal, etc.), to treat (q.v.), to ratify by drinking success. As verb, to drink, lush (q.v.): also to wet one's whistle (clay, swallow, the red lane, etc.): Fr., se mouiller: see Whistle and Whistle-drunk; to wet the other eye, to take one drink after another. As adj., (or wet-handed) (1) addicted to drinking, (2) drunk: see Screwed; and (3) (American), anti-prohibition; e.g. a wet-town, a town opposed to prohibition in the sale of intoxicants: cf. dry: whence a wet, one opposed to prohibition. Also heavy-wet, porter; twopenny-wet (see Twopenny); a wet-hand (wetter, or wet'un), a toper: see Lushington; wet-bargain (see Bargain); wet-night, an evening carousal; wet-goods, drink: cf. dry-goods; wet-Quaker, (1) a secret drinker, and spec. (2) a drunkard of that sect (B. E.); to wet the sickle, to drink out earnest-money at harvest-time; wetting the block, a custom among shoemakers on the first Monday in March, when they cease from working by candlelight, and have a supper so called (Halliwel).

To break a fly (or butterfly) on a wheel, to punish unduly, without regard to the gravity of the crime, or the standing of the offender; whence to use means altogether out of proportion to the end in view; to crack a nut with a Nasmyth hammer (1734). To grease the wheels, to furnish money for a specific object: see Grease (1809). To go (or run) on wheels, (1) to do with ease, expedition, without exertion; (2) said of one suffering from the after-effects of drunkenness (1772). To put one's shoulder to the wheel, to put one's heart into a matter, to buckle to, to do with spirit, resolution, or courage. Wheels within wheels, complication, intricacies, something other than that which is apparent at first sight (1730). To steer a trick at the wheel: see Trick. To put a spoke in one's wheel (or cart), to do an ill turn: occasionally (by an unwarrantable inversion), to assist (1661). Wheel-hand in the nick, Regular Drinking over the left Thumb (B. E.).

Wheelbarrow. As drunk as a wheelbarrow (or as the drum of a wheelbarrow), very drunk indeed: see Screwed (1675). To go to heaven in a wheelbarrow, to go to hell. [In the painted glass at Fairford, Gloucestershire, the devil is represented as wheeling off a scolding wife in a barrow.] (1655).

Wheeler. A horse driven in shafts or next to the wheels: cf. Leader. Also off-wheeler, a horse driven on the right-hand side, i.e. the side on which a postilion never rides; near-wheeler, the horse on the left-hand side.

Wheel-horse. An intimate friend, one's right-hand man, a leading man (Bartlett).

Wheel-of-life. The treadmill, the everlasting-staircase (q.v.).

Wheeze. Generic for a gag (q.v.) of any description: e.g. interpolated lines (usually comic) in a play, a bit of business (q.v.), a sidesman's patter (q.v.), a bon-mot, joke, and so forth; to crack a wheeze, to originate (or adapt) a smart saying at a psychological moment. As verb, to say, inform, peach (q.v.).

When. Say when! That is, Say when I shall stop: the dovetail reply is Bob!

Where. See You.

Wherefore. See Why.

Wherewith (or Wherewithal). The necessary, requisites: spec. money (generic): see Rhino (1390).

Wherret. See Whirrit.

Wherry-go-nimble. A looseness of the bowels, a back-door trot (q.v.): cf. Jerry-go-nimble.

Whetstone. To give (deserve, win, lie for, etc.) the whetstone, to give (get, or compete for) the prize for lying: a whetstone, i.e. a wit-sharpener, regarded as a satirical premium for what nowadays would be called naked (or monumental) lying. [Nares: There were, in some places, jocular games, in which the prize given for the greatest lie was a whetstone.] [Halliwel: The liar was sometimes publicly exhibited with the whetstone fastened to him.] (1570).

Whetstone-park. 'A Lane betwixt Holborn and Lincoln's-Inn-Fields, fam'd for a Nest of Wenches, now (B. E., c. 1696) de-park'd.' Whence many allusions in the old dramatists.

Whetter. See Wet.

Whew. Influenza, the flue (q.v.): it is well known that the influenza is not an exclusively modern complaint, but I am not sure whether a curious reference to it by Bower, the continuator of Fordun's chronicle, has been noted. Writing of the year 1420 he says that among those who died in Scotland were Sir Henry St. Clair, Earl of Orkney, Sir James Douglas of Dalkeith, Sir William de Abernethy, Sir William de St. Clair, Sir William Cockburn, and many others, all by that infirmity whereby not only great men, but innumerable quantity of the commonalty perished, which was vulgarly termed le Quhew. Now quh in Scottish texts usually represents the sound of wh (properly aspirated); therefore it seems that in the fifteenth century, the influenza was known as the Whew, just as it is known in the twentieth century as the Flue. There seems little doubt that the disease was identical with that with which we are so grievously familiar (Notes and Queries).

Wheyworm. See Whayworm.

Whiblin. 1. A eunuch. 2. A sword (1653).

Whid. (1) A word (1567): in pl., patter, talk, jocular speech. Also (2) (Scotch), a lie, fib; (3) (provincial), a dispute or quarrel. As verb (Scots), to lie. Also to cut whids, to talk, to speak; to cut bien whids, to talk fairly, softly, kindly; to cut queer whids, to abuse, swear, bullyrag (q.v.); also whiddle, to talk, tell, or discover (B. E. and Grose); spec. to reveal secrets, or give the game away: hence whiddler, an informer.

Whiddle. See Whid and Oliver.

Whiff. 1. A smell; as verb, to smell: e.g. How it whiffs. 2. A draught, a drink, a go (q.v.): as verb, to drink: also whiffle (1653).

Whiffet. Anything or anybody worthless or insignificant, a whip-snapper (q.v.).

Whiffle. 1. Generic for trifling: to hesitate, talk idly, prevaricate, waver; hence whiffler, a trifier, a fickle or unsteady person; whiffery (whiffing, or whistle-whaffle), levity, nonsense; whiffing, uncertain (1607). 2. To drink.

Whig. 1. Orig. (middle 17th century) a Presbyterian zealot, a conventicler: in contempt. Whence, 2. the Country party (the successors of the Roundheads of the Civil War) as opposed to the Court party or Tories (q.v.), of the Restoration. Both Whig and Tory were first applied, about 1680, in contempt, and both were ultimately assumed with pride. The Whigs favoured the Revolution of 1688-89, and were in power during a large portion of the eighteenth century. The Whigs may be regarded as the party of experimental progress. The curious similarity in the historical development of both Whig and Tory is further accentuated by the fact that at the same time (Reform Bill, 1832) as the term Tory began to be superseded by Conservative, so likewise the Whigs began to be called Liberals. Also Whigland, Scotland (B. E.); the Whig College, the Reform Club; Whiggish, and the usual derivatives and combinations. 3. During the war of the American Revolution, the terms Whig and Tory were applied,—the former to those who supported the Revolutionary movement, the latter to the royalists, or those who adhered to the British government (Bartlett).

Whim. 1. A maggot (B. E.). Hence Whimsical, maggotish: see Bee in bonnet, and Maggot. 2. See Jiggumbob.

Whip. 1. A driver, a coachman: also knight of the whip (1778). 2. A member who (unofficially) looks after the interests of his party; prob. from whipper-in. [Bryce: The whip's duties are (a) to inform every member belonging to the party when an important division may be expected, and if he sees the member in or about the House, to keep him there until the division is called; (b) to direct the members of his own party how to vote; (c) to obtain pairs for them if they cannot be present to vote; (d) to tell, i.e. count the members in every party division; (e) to keep touch of opinion within the party, and convey to the leader a faithful impression of that opinion, from which the latter may judge how far he may count on the support of his whole party in any course he proposes to take.] Also (3) the call made for attendance at a division, etc.; and as verb (or to whip in, or up) (1836). 4. A compositor quick in setting type; a type-slinger (which also see). As verb, (1) to surpass, beat, defeat, overcome; hence whipping, defeat: e.g. to whip the enemy (or give them a whipping) to whip creation, etc. (1859); (2) to swindle; (3) generic for quick, smart action: e.g. to whip on (up, off, out, etc.): frequently with an idea of stealth; also whip, quickly, instanter (1360). To drink (or lick) on the whip, to get a thrashing, to taste the whip (1401). To whip the cat, (1) to pinch, to be parsimonious, mean, stingy; (2) to go from house to house to work: chiefly tailors', but the practice was more or less common to all trades; hence whip-cat, a tailor; (3) to idle on Monday, to keep St. Monday; 4. (a) To get tipsy: see Screwed: also to whip (jerk, or shoot the cat, or to cat); also (b) to vomit; hence whipcat, drunken; Whipcan, a toper; (5) to indulge in practical jokes: spec. a trick often practised on ignorant country fellows, vain of their strength; by laying a wager with them, that they may be pulled through a pond by a cat; the bet being made, a rope is fixed round the waist of the party to be catted, and the end thrown across the pond, to which the cat is also fastened by a pack-thread, and three or four sturdy fellows are appointed to lead and whip the cat; these, on a signal given, seize the end of the cord, and pretending to whip the cat, haul the astonished booby through the water (B. E.). To whip the devil round the stump, to make false excuses to one's self and others for doing what one likes; to equivocate, to say, pretend, or do one thing, and mean, or act differently.
